PREFACE

As part of the curriculum revision, the SSLC English syllabus has been updated to reflect modern educational standards. The focus is on value-based, activity-oriented learning that enhances reading, writing, and comprehension skills, encouraging students to express themselves clearly and confidently.

This module supports diverse learning needs through thoughtfully designed units aligned with expected outcomes. Innovative teaching strategies promote active participation and meaningful engagement. Real-life contexts and relatable content aim to make learning more relevant and enjoyable, fostering critical thinking and creativity among students.

With careful attention to exam requirements, this resource serves both students and teachers—offering practical guidance for effective preparation and deeper understanding. It also promotes continuous learning through reflective exercises and integrated assessments, helping learners build a strong foundation in the usage of English language in various contexts.

TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS

1. A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings: At a Glance

"A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings" by Gabriel Garcia Marquez is a powerful example of magical realism, which blends the ordinary and the extraordinary in a unique and captivating narrative style.

One gloomy afternoon, Pelayo saw a strange old man lying face down in the mud in his back courtyard. He had huge dirty wings. He looked weak and tired. Frightened, Pelayo and his wife Elisenda inspect the man closely. He was dressed in rags. His wings were stuck in the mud, and he could not get up. He appeared like a wet grandfather than a divine being.

The old man spoke an unknown language. They assumed that he might be a shipwrecked foreigner. But a neighbour woman said that he was an angel who had come for their sick child.

The next day, the entire town flocked to their courtyard to see the angel. They treated him like a strange animal. The visitors threw food at him. Pelayo locked him in the chicken coop to keep him safe. They charged five cents as an admission fee from the visitors to see the angel. Thus, they became rich, built a beautiful house, and lived in comfort. Pilgrims and others from far away places visited the angel, hoping for miracles. But the angel remained passive and patient, ignored and mistreated by people.

The people soon lost interest in the angel when a new attraction - a woman who had been turned into a spider - arrived in the town. They stopped visiting Pelayo's house, but by that time, the couple had made enough money. As time passed, the angel was forgotten. The chicken coop became dirty and broken, and the angel grew weaker. But, then slowly he survived. New feathers grew on his wings, and he started his attempts to fly again. One day, when Elisenda was cutting onions in the kitchen, she saw the angel struggling to fly. At last, he lifted off and disappeared into the distance. She watched him until he became a mere dot on the horizon. She felt a kind of relief as the burden had finally left their lives.

2. In The Attic : At a glance

"In the Attic" is an except from Wadyslaw Szpilman's survivor testimony titled "The Pianist."It revolves around the unusual friendship between Szpilman and Captain Wilm Hosenfeld, a German officer. Szpilman was hiding in an attic during the final days of war in Warsaw. The German officer finds him in an abandoned building and asks him to play the piano. He played Chopin's Nocturne in C- sharp minor, which moved the officer deeply. The officer offered to take Szpilman to a safer location, and it was then that he learned that Szpilman was a Jew. He told Szpilman not to stay in the city as it was dangerous. But Szpilman was not ready to leave. The officer helped him to find a better hiding place in a small loft above the attic. The officer brought him food and supplies, He admitted to the fact that he was ashamed of identifying himself as a German. He told Szpilman that the war would soon be over and that he must "hang on" to survive. Szpilman continued to live in isolation often without human contact for long intervals. The only sound heard was the artillery fire and the soldiers going up and down the stairs where he was hiding. Before leaving the city, the officer came one last time to Szpilman and gave him extra food and a warm blanket. He advised Szpilman not to lose heart. At the parting moment Szpilman expressed his gratitude and promised to repay the officer's kindness and assistance. Szpilman survived another year there. One morning, he heard Polish announcements that the war was over and Warsaw was free. He stayed in a confused state, not knowing what to do. Then he came across the voices of women and children down the street. Excited, but cautious, he put on the German coat the officer had given him and went outside. A woman who mistook him as a German officer screamed. At that, a Polish guard shot at him, and he ran back into the attic. Later, the soldiers understood the situation, and Szpilman was rescued. For the first time in six years, he walked freely through the streets of Warsaw. The friendship between Szpilman and the German officer remains a powerful testament to the human capacity for connection and compassion even in the most challenging circumstances. Szpilman's story is a testament to the human spirits' ability to persevere in the face of adversity.

3. Friends Romans Countrymen : At a glance

Friends, Romans Countrymen is a famous speech by Mark Antony in the play "Julius Caesar" of William Shakespeare . At the time of Caesar's funeral, Antony seeks Brutus' permission to render a funeral eulogy to Caesar.

Through the ironical words, Mark Antony reveals the secret of the assassination of Caesar by his bosom friend Brutus and the conspirators. He repeats some words and expressions to make the crowd aware of their motive. He also reminds the people about the good deeds of Caesar. So he persuades them to revenge Caesar's murder. The famous eulogy is embellished by wonderful literical devices like metaphor (ambition should be made of sterner stuff),alliteration (friend faithful, brutish beasts) irony (The noble Brutus, Brutus is an honourable man) hyperbole (my heart is in the coffin there with Caesar) etc. It's no wonder Mark Antony's masterpiece of oration is written in golden letters of the annals of history.

1.3. Read the excerpt from "In the Attic" and answer the questions that follow.

On 14 January unusual noises in the building and the street outside woke me. Soldiers ran up and down the stairs, and I heard agitated, nervous voices. Early in the morning of 15 January, the sound of artillery from the previously silent front was heard. The ground and the walls of the building shook under the constant dull thunder. Three hours later the heavy artillery fire died down again, but I was as nervous as ever. I did not sleep at all that night. The street fighting would begin at any moment, and I could be killed.

The night passed peacefully. Around one o'clock I heard the remaining Germans leaving the building. Silence fell. I could not even hear the steps of the guards outside the building. Not until the early hours of the next day was the silence broken by a loud and resonant noise, the last sound I had expected. Radio loudspeakers set up somewhere nearby were broadcasting announcements in Polish of the defeat of Germany and the liberation of Warsaw.

1.What unusual events woke the narrator on 14th January?

2. How did the narrator describe the silence after the Germans left?

Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears;
I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him.
The evil that men do lives after them;
The good is oft interred with their bones;
So let it be with Caesar. The noble Brutus
Hath told you Caesar was ambitious:

If it were so, it was a grievous fault;

And grievously hath Caesar answered it.

Part A : Multiple Choice Questions

1. Who is the speaker addressing in the speech?

   a) Senators only

You all did see that on the Lupercal
I thrice presented him a kingly crown,
Which he did thrice refuse: was this ambition?
Yet Brutus says he was ambitious;
And, sure, he is an honourable man.
I speak not to disprove what Brutus spoke,
But here I am to speak what I do know.
You all did love him once, not without cause:
What cause withholds you, then, to mourn for him?

O judgement, thou art fled to brutish beasts,
And men have lost their reason! - Bear with me;
My heart is in the coffin there with Caesar,
And I must pause till it come back to me.

1. Which festival is mentioned here?
2. Pick out the lines that show Caesar was not ambitious

3. Possible Discourses

3.1. Review

Blending magic with reality, Marquez's A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings stands as a remarkable tale that invites deep reflection. Write a critical review of the story, focusing on its central theme, the characterization , the ambience created and the author's distinctive style of narration.

3.2. Character sketch

a. In the story "A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings", the writer skillfully presents the character of Pelayo through his involvement in and reactions to various events. Prepare a character sketch of Pelayo, bringing out his main traits as revealed in the story.

Pelayo, one of the central figures in the story"A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings". Marquez portrayed him as a representative of the common man who encounters a supernatural event in the midst of his ordinary life. As a bailiff, he holds responsibility to the public, yet his foremost concern is the safety of his family. His reaction to the strange old man with wings reflects both fear and duty: startled by the unexpected sight of the winged creature trapped in the mud, his immediate instinct is to run to his wife, Elisenda, for support.

Together, they approach the old man, whom they initially mistake for a shipwrecked castaway. However, when their neighbour lady interprets him as an angel who might have come for their sick child, Pelayo's fear deepens. That evening , he sits in his kitchen armed with his bailiff's club, and before going to bed, he drags the old man into the chicken coop—an act that demonstrates both his anxiety and his desire to shield his loved ones.

Pelayo's humanity is evident in his conflicting impulses. When his child is mysteriously cured, he contemplates sending the winged man back to sea with provisions. Yet, when the crowd gathers, he agrees with Elisenda's suggestion to charge an entry fee. Although this decision reveals his willingness to profit from the situation, it also reflects his practicality as a common man struggling for survival. He uses the money wisely—resigning from his job, starting a new business, and building a comfortable new house for his family.

Despite exploiting the old man for financial gain, Pelayo does not abandon his empathy and soft feelings. He allows the winged stranger to remain in his courtyard, worries about his health, and provides him with a blanket during the winter. These gestures, though modest, show his underlying kindness.

Thus, Pelayo emerges as a complex character—fearful yet protective, practical yet humane. He embodies the struggles of an ordinary man torn between survival, morality, and the mystery of the unknown.

b. In the story 'A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings,' the writer vividly portrays the Old Man through his mysterious appearance and the different responses he provokes in the people around him. Prepare a character sketch of the Old Man.

c. In the story "A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings," Marquez effectively reveals Elisenda's character through her actions and attitudes toward the Old Man and the unfolding events. Prepare a character sketch of Elisenda.

d. "In the Attic" the German officer, is depicted as a compassionate and morally conflicted man amid the brutal realities of World War II. Although a soldier in the Nazi army, he shows kindness and empathy toward Szpilman. Prepare a character sketch of the German officer.

3.3. Letter

a. In the story "A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings," imagine Pelayo writes a letter to his friend describing a strange and unforgettable incident that occurred in his courtyard. In the letter, he shares his personal observations, the reactions of the villagers, and the lessons he learned from the experience. Write the letter.

Key features

1. Relevant to the context → Mentions the old man's arrival, villagers' reaction, his suffering, and departure.
2. Language suitable for informal/personal letter → Friendly tone, use of "My dear friend," and "Do write back soon."
3. Proper salutation and farewell phrase → "My dear friend" (salutation), "Yours lovingly" (farewell).
4. Message conveyed → Lesson: miracles appear in ordinary forms, need for compassion.
5. Well-formed sentences → Clear, grammatically correct, complete sentences.
6. Ideas linked properly → Arrival → villagers' reaction → old man's endurance → his departure → moral/lesson.

KK House
Seashore village
27 September 2025

My dear friend,

I am writing to tell you about a strange and unforgettable incident that happened in our village. One stormy night, an old man with enormous wings appeared in our courtyard. At first, we were shocked and frightened. His wings were muddy and broken, and he looked more like a beggar than an angel.

Soon the whole village gathered to see him. People brought food, money, and even advice, but they treated him more like a creature in a circus than a human being. Though everyone called him an angel, very few showed him kindness. He remained silent and patient, bearing all the ridicule and stares.

After many days, when his strength slowly returned, the old man began to spread his wings. It was an amazing sight. At last, he rose into the sky and disappeared beyond the horizon. Watching him fly away filled me with wonder and guilt. We realised too late that we had failed to respect a miracle when it was with us.

This incident has taught me that extraordinary things can appear in the most ordinary forms, and that true humanity lies in compassion, not curiosity.

Do write back soon. Convey my regards to your family.

Yours lovingly,
Pelayo

UNIT 2

PATHS TO PROGRESS

1. BREAKING BARRIERS: I WILL FLY: At a glance

This autobiographical piece tells the story of Srikanth Bolla, who was born blind. His parents were farmers in a small village in Andhra Pradesh. They accepted their son as he was and brought him up with love and care. When his father saw that Srikanth was not of much help in the fields, he decided to send him to the nearby school. At school Srikanth had to face many problems. He was made to sit on the last bench and ignored by his teachers and friends. After two years, his father sent him to a special school in Hyderabad where there were children like him. Srikanth excelled in all activities. He passed his 10th grade with 90% marks. Despite facing discrimination and rejection from the society again when he was denied admission to science stream in school—he persevered. With an order from the government that he could study science at his own risk, he completed his 12th grade with 98% marks. With the support of his parents and mentor, he went on to study at MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) and later established a successful enterprise, Bollant Industries. The purpose of this enterprise was to rehabilitate, nurture and reintegrate disabled individuals into society.

The lesson emphasizes the importance of determination, courage, and breaking societal barriers. Srikanth's journey is a testament to how one can rise above limitations and create opportunities not just for oneself, but for others too.

2. A Phoenix Rises : At a glance

This inspiring story is based on the real-life journey of Arunachalam Muruganantham, a humble man from rural Tamil Nadu who became a pioneer in menstrual hygiene.

The story follows Bablu, a fictional character who mirrors Muruganantham's life. After the death of his father, Bablu had to drop out of school at a very early age and look for a job to help his mother who was working hard to support the family. He got a job in a workshop as a busboy. He worked hard to become a welder and gradually took over the workshop and slowly improved the business. He got married and after his marriage he noticed things that he felt required urgent attention. One day he found his wife use unhygienic cloth during her periods, Bablu was deeply disturbed.

He learned that commercial sanitary pads were too expensive for poor families. Determined to help, he began experimenting with making low-cost sanitary pads.Despite being mocked, misunderstood, and abandoned by his own family, Bablu never gave up. He tested materials, built machines, and finally discovered a way to make affordable pads using pinewood pulp. His invention not only improved women's health but also created jobs for rural women.

Like a phoenix rising from the ashes, Bablu rose above rejection and humiliation to bring hope, dignity, and change to society. The story also highlights how one's determination can remove the taboos existing in society and bring in positive changes.

3. The Seedling

by Paul Laurence Dunbar

Summary

Paul Laurence Dunbar's poem "The Seedling" is a gentle and inspiring piece that uses the journey of a small plant to reflect the struggles and growth of human life. The seedling, though not strong, decides to do its best and begins its journey from the dark soil to the light of day. It symbolizes human potential and the journey of growth from darkness to light. The poem conveys the message of how we must rise above challenges with courage and hope.

The poem teaches us that even if we are not perfect or powerful, we can still grow, succeed, and bloom by putting in effort and staying positive. The seedling's determination, teamwork, and patience show us the values of hard work and self-belief.

The poem uses a several poetic devices like simile " Little folks, be like the seedling", metaphor " darksome bed", personification "To itself it fell a talking," and alliteration in " So it pushed a little leaflet". The seedling is given human qualities of thinking and working. The growth of the seedling is a metaphor for the human growth. The overall tone is cheerful and motivational, inspiring the readers to embrace life's challenges with a positive attitude and to always do their best. The poem has a steady rhythm with words like 'bed-said', and 'day-way'. The poem inspires us to grow through struggles and effort with love and kindness.

Reading Comprehension

1.1. Read the following excerpt from 'Breaking Barriers I will Fly' and answer the questions that follow.

Despite the challenges of trekking to a faraway school and being ignored by teachers and classmates, I persevered. For two years, I sat on the last bench, excluded from activities. I then felt like the poorest child in the world—not on account of lack of money, but because of loneliness and isolation.

Eventually, my parents and relatives decided that I should study in a school with students like me. So, I was sent to a special school in Hyderabad. There I excelled, becoming an outstanding student, earning top ranks, and representing India in chess and cricket. I had the privilege of working with Dr A.P.J. Abdul Kalam on various projects like the Lead India Youth Transformation Project.

When I completed my 10th grade with over 90% marks I wanted to study science at the A.P. State Board. However, I was told I could only take arts because I was 'impaired.' I did not consider myself visually impaired but visually 'challenged.' I was not allowed to pursue my passion due to the perceptions of others. Rather than accept this, I decided to sue the government.

1. What was the attitude of the teachers and students towards young Srikanth?
2. Why did Srikanth feel like 'the poorest child in the world'?
3. Who decided to send Srikanth to the special school in Hyderabad
    a. Classmates
    b. Parents and relatives
    c. Brother
    d. Neighbour
4. Srikanth was told to take arts because
    a. He loved arts
    b. He was too poor to study science
    c. He was 'visually impaired'
    d. His friend suggested him to take arts.

    Choose the correct option.
    i. Only (a) is correct
    ii. Only (b) is correct
    iii. Only © is correct
    iv. None of the above
5. What made Srikanth sue the government?

Answers

1. Teachers and students ignored Srikanth Bolla.
2. Srikanth felt like the poorest child in the world because he sat on the last bench for more than two years and was excluded from activities in the school.
3. His parents and relatives.
4. (iii) only © is correct.
5. Srikanth sued the government as he was not allowed to study science.

1.2. Read the following excerpt from 'Breaking Barriers I will Fly' and answer the questions that follow.

Should I just get married, settle down and work in corporate America? No, I wanted to solve the problems I had faced. Why should blind children be made to sit on the last bench? Why should 10% of India's population, who are disabled, be excluded from the economy?

These questions led me back to India, where I returned, giving up all the opportunities in corporate America, to build a strong support system for the disabled. We established a platform, Bollant Industries together with my partner, to find, rehabilitate, nurture, and reintegrate disabled individuals into society, rather than separate them from it.

1. What was the name of Srikanth's Entrepreneurship?
2. Why did the narrator return to India?
   a) To pursue a career in politics
   b) To build a support system for the disabled
   c) To start a business for profit.
   d) To work with Dr. Abdul Kalam → Answer: B
3. Assertion (A): The narrator returned to India from corporate America.
   Reason (R): The narrator wanted to build a support system for disabled individuals.
   Options:
   A) Both A and R are true, and R explains A
   B) Both A and R are true, but R does not explain A.
   C) A is true, but R is false.
   D) A is false, but R is true.
4. Why did Srikanth start 'Bollant Industry'?
5. Find out the word that means 'to restore to good health'.

Answers:

1. Bollant Industries.
2. (b) to build a support system for the disabled.
3. A) Both A and R are true, and R explains A.
4. Srikanth started Bollant Industries to find, rehabilitate, nurture and reintegrate disabled individuals into society.
5. rehabilitate

1.3. Read the following excerpt from 'Breaking Barriers I will Fly' and answer the questions that follow.

After six months of legal battle, I received a government order allowing me to study science, but at my own risk. Despite the lack of resources, I worked hard, with the help of a mentor. She recorded my textbooks on audio, and I scored 98% in my exams. This proves that anyone, regardless of their 'impairment' or challenges, can achieve great things.

However, my journey didn't end there. When it was time to apply to top engineering schools like IIT, I was told that I couldn't sit for the competitive exams because of my blindness. If IIT didn't want me, I decided I didn't want it either. I applied to top schools in the United States and was accepted into MIT, Stanford, Berkeley, and Carnegie Mellon. I chose to attend MIT, becoming the first international blind student in its history

1.For how long did the legal battle last?

Read the following lines from the poem ' The Seedling' and prepare a note of appreciation focussing on the theme, images and poetic devices.

As a quiet little seedling
Lay within its darksome bed,
To itself it fell a-talking,

And this is what it said:

"I am not so very robust,
But I'll do the best I can;"
And the seedling from that moment
Its work of life began.
So it pushed a little leaflet
Up into the light of day,
To examine the surroundings
And show the rest the way

'The Seedling' is written by the famous American poet Paul Laurence Dunbar. The poem celebrates the ideals of perseverance, self -improvement and continuous growth. The seedling is given human qualities and its thoughts and actions are represented as human.

In the given lines the poet takes metaphor of a tiny seedling transforming into a flowering plant. The seedling lying in earth tells itself that though it is not very strong and robust, it can do its best. And with this confidence it starts to grow. The seedling pushed a small leaf from the earth to the light of the day. The leaf not only examined the surrounding but also paved the way for others to follow

The poem is rich in poetic devices. The poet uses seedling as a metaphor for life and growth. There are lot of images. There is visual imagery in 'it pushed a little leaflet up into the light of day'. There is personification in 'to itself it fell a talking'. There is alliteration in 'so it pushed a little leaflet'. There are four lines in each stanza. The rhyme scheme is ' abab.'

UNIT 3

THE TRUMPETS OF CHANGE

1. WAR : At a glance

"War" by Luigi Pirandello is a short story set during World War I, on a train carrying several passengers. Most of them are parents of soldiers who are fighting or have fought in the war. Among them is a couple whose only son has just been sent to the front. The mother is heartbroken and says nothing, while the father tries to stay calm, even though he is also very sad.

As the train moves, the passengers start talking about their children and the war. The conversation soon becomes a debate about duty and patriotism. One man, whose son has already died in the war, speaks strongly. He says that parents should not be selfish and cry too much, because once children grow up, they belong to their country. He believes that soldiers should go to war with pride, and parents should be proud of their sacrifice instead of feeling of pain. For a while, the other passengers seem to agree with him.

The quiet father listens to all of this, but does not speak. The passengers try to comfort themselves by thinking that their sons are dying for a noble reason—to serve their country. This idea helps them feel a little better, even if only for a short time.

But then, the man who had spoken so confidently starts to show his true feelings. His voice shakes, and he becomes sad. When the grieving mother finally asks him if his son is really dead, he cannot answer right away. Then he suddenly breaks down and starts crying, realizing how much pain he truly feels.

2. A PIECE OF STRING : At a glance

The short story "A Piece of String" by Guy de Maupassant takes place in a small village named Goderville in France. The main character is an old peasant named Hauchecome. One day, while walking towards the public square, he notices a piece of string lying on the ground. Thinking it might be useful, he bends down and picks it up. Unfortunately, another man from the village, Malandain, sees him pick up the string. Hauchecome becomes ashamed to be seen thus by him. Malandain is not on good terms with Hauchecome. Hauchecome goes towards the market.

Later that day, it is announced that someone has lost a pocketbook in the marketplace. The finder is requested to return the same to the Mayor’s office. When people begin to discuss the possibility of finding it, a chief of the police appears and informs Hauchecome that he is to meet the Mayor. The Mayor tells Hauchecome that he was seen picking up the lost pocketbook. Hauchecome is shocked and tries to explain that he only picked up a piece of string. He even shows the string to prove his honesty. But no one believes him. Even after the wallet is found by someone else and returned to its owner, the villagers still think Hauchecome was involved somehow.

Despite being innocent, Hauchecome finds that people continue to treat him as if he is guilty. They mock him, whisper behind his back, and avoid him. This unfair treatment deeply affects him. He becomes obsessed with proving his innocence and keeps repeating his story to everyone he meets, hoping someone will believe him. But instead of gaining sympathy, people think he is lying even more. Over time, the stress and shame become too much for him to bear. His health worsens, and eventually, he dies, heartbroken and defeated. The story clearly shows how easily people judge others without proof and how once a person's reputation is damaged, it is very difficult to repair, even if they are truly innocent.

3. Another Day in Paradise : At a glance

The song tells the story of a homeless woman struggling on the streets. She suffers from cold and hunger and has blisters on her feet. Passers-by, including the singer, ignore her plight, showing society's general indifference. Through the refrain "Oh, think twice, it's another day for you and me in paradise," the singer reminds us to be compassionate and help those in need. The song highlights poverty, homelessness, and moral responsibility.

1. READING COMPREHENSION

1.1. Read the following excerpt from 'War' and answer the questions that follow.

The passengers who had left Rome by the night express had to stop until dawn at the small station of Fabriano. They then needed to continue their journey by the old- fashioned local train to Sulmona.

At dawn, in a stuffy and smoky second class carriage in which a few people had already spent the night, a stout woman in deep mourning was hoisted in. Behind her, puffing and moaning, followed her husband—a tiny man, thin and weak, his face death-white. His eyes were small and bright and he looked shy and uneasy. Having at last taken a seat, he politely thanked the passengers who had helped his wife by making room for her.

1. Where did the passengers by the night express have to stop until dawn?
2. How would the passengers continue their journey to Sulmona?
3. How is the second class carriage described?
4. What is special about the second class carriage?

1.2. Read the following excerpt from 'War' and answer the questions that follow.

And he felt it his duty to explain to his travelling companions that the poor woman was to be pitied. The war was taking away from her their only son, a boy of twenty. Both of them had devoted their entire life to him. They had even broken up their home at Sulmona to follow him to Rome, where he had to go as a student. They allowed him to volunteer for war with an assurance that for at least six months he would not be sent to the war front. And now, all of a sudden, they received a wire from him saying that he was due to leave in three days' time. They were now going to see him off.

The woman was twisting and wriggling, at times growling like a wild animal. She felt certain that all those explanations would not have aroused even a shadow of sympathy from those people. They were all, most likely, in the same plight as herself.

1. What did the husband feel his duty?
2. Why did the couple break up their home at Sulmona?
3. What was the assurance by which the couple allowed their son to volunteer for war?
4. The couple was going to Sulmona because

a. their son joined the war front.

b. they had devoted their entire life to their son.

c. they had broken up their home at Sulmona.

d. they wanted to see their son off for having received a wire.

5. Why did the woman feel certain that her husband's humble explanations would not have aroused even a shadow of sympathy from the other passengers?

Answers

1. to explain to his travelling companions that the poor woman was to be pitied

2. to follow their son to Rome, where he had to go as a student

3. for at least six months he would not be sent to the war front

4. d. they wanted to see their son off for having received a wire

5. They were all, most likely, in the same plight as herself.

1.3. Read the following excerpt from 'War' and answer the questions that follow.

"Bosh!" retorted the stout traveller. "Do we think of the country when we give life to our children? We belong to them but they never belong to us. And when they reach twenty, they are exactly what we were at their age. Now, at our age, the love of our Country is still great, of course, but stronger than it is the love of our children. Is there any one of us here who wouldn't gladly take his son's place at the front if he could?"

There was a silence all round, everybody nodding as if to approve. The stout man continued, "Isn't it natural that at their age they should consider the love for their Country even greater than their love for us? If Country is a natural necessity like bread, somebody must go to defend it. And our sons go, when they are twenty, and they don't want tears, because if they die, they die happy.

Everyone should stop crying; everyone should laugh, as I do… or at least thank God—as I do—because my son, before dying, sent me a message. He was dying satisfied at having ended his life in the best way he could have wished. That is why, as you see, I do not even wear mourning…"

1. 'Now, at our age, the love of our Country is still great, of course, but stronger than it is the love of our children.' What does this statement indicate?

    a. They love their country more than their children.

    b. They love their children more than their country.

    c. They do not want to send their children to volunteer for war.

    d. Their children do not wish to volunteer for war.

2. Why must somebody go to defend the country?

3. Why does the stout man thank God?

4. What did the stout man's son communicate to his father before dying?

5. The stout man doesn't wear morning because

    a. he doesn't feel sad.

    b. his son had ended his life in the best way he could have wished.

    c. his son didn't go to volunteer for war.

    d. everyone else in the compartment doesn't wear mourning.

Answers

Along all the roads around Goderville, the peasants and their wives were coming to the town because it was market day. Some led a cow or a calf by a cord, and their wives, walking behind the animal, whipped it with a leafy branch to hasten its progress. In the public square of Goderville, there was a crowd, a throng of human beings and animals.

Hauchecome had just arrived at Goderville, and he was walking towards the public square. Then he saw a little piece of string on the ground. He thought that everything useful ought to be picked up. He took the bit of thin cord from the ground and began to roll it carefully. Then he noticed Malandain, on the threshold of his door, looking at him. They were on bad terms with each other. Hauchecome was seized with shame to be seen thus by his enemy. He concealed his find quickly in his trousers pocket. He pretended to be looking on the ground for something else. Then, he went towards the market.

2. Analysing Song

Read the given lines from the song 'Another Day in Paradise' and answer the questions that follow.

She calls out to the man on the street

"Sir, can you help me?

It's cold and I've nowhere to sleep

Is there somewhere you can tell me?"

He walks on, doesn't look back

He pretends he can't hear her

Starts to whistle as he crosses the street

Seems embarrassed to be there

Oh think twice, 'cause it's another day for

You and me in paradise

Oh think twice, 'cause it's another day for you

You and me in paradise

Just think about it

1. Who do you think is the “she” referred to in the opening line of the song?

Ans: The “she” refers to a homeless woman. She is not a particular individual but a representative of the poor, needy, homeless, and marginalized in society.

2. Who could be the man the woman addresses as “sir”?

Ans: The man addressed as “sir” is an ordinary passer-by. He represents the privileged members of society who often ignore the sufferings of the homeless instead of helping them.

3. What help is the woman asking for?

Ans: The woman is asking for shelter, comfort, and human kindness. She pleads for basic help and compassion because she has no place to stay and is suffering on the streets.

4. What is the problem the woman is facing as suggested in the line “It's cold and I've nowhere to sleep”?

Ans: The woman is facing homelessness and lack of shelter. She has no protection from the cold and no safe place to sleep at night.

5. Where is the woman found sitting?

Ans: The woman is found sitting on the street, on the pavement/sidewalk, pleading for help from passers-by.

6. What do you understand about the attitude of the man from the line “He walks on, doesn’t look back”?

Ans: This shows the man’s indifferent and insensitive attitude. Instead of helping, he ignores the woman and walks away without compassion.

7. Which action by the man does not show his emotional detachment?

1. Walking on without looking back
2. Pretending he can't hear the woman
3. Whistling and crossing the street
4. Thinking twice about paradise

Ans: 4

8. What could the man be embarrassed at?

Ans: He is embarrassed at his lack of compassion and unwillingness to help. Deep down, he knows it is his moral duty to respond, but he chooses to ignore her suffering.

9. Why does the man whistle as he crosses the street?

Ans: The man whistles to appear carefree. It is his way of hiding guilt and avoiding the uncomfortable feeling of having ignored the homeless woman.

10. Comment on the refrain of the song.

Ans: The refrain “Oh, think twice, it’s another day for you and me in paradise” reminds us to be aware of the suffering around us. It contrasts the comfort of our lives (“paradise”) with the hardships of the homeless, urging empathy and compassion.

Stanza II

She calls out to the man on the street

He can see she's been crying

She's got blisters on the soles of her feet

She can't walk but she's trying

Oh think twice, 'cause it's another day for

You and me in paradise

Oh think twice, it's just another day for you

You and me in paradise

Just think about it

Questions

1. Pick out a word from the stanza which is a symbol of the woman’s long suffering.

Ans: The word “blisters” symbolizes her long suffering. It highlights her physical pain and the harsh reality of her life.

2. What do you understand about the woman’s condition from the line “She's got blisters on the soles of her feet”?

Ans: It shows she suffers from walking long distances without proper footwear, reflecting her poverty, hardship, and the painful reality of homelessness.

3. Why is the woman unable to walk?

Ans: She is unable to walk because of painful blisters caused by walking long distances without proper shoes.

4. What do you understand about the woman’s nature from the clause “can't walk but she's trying”?

Ans: This shows her determination and resilience. Despite pain and suffering, she struggles on, reflecting courage and perseverance.

5. Why does the singer repeat the lines “Oh, think twice, 'cause it’s another day for you and me in paradise”?

Ans: The repetition emphasizes the contrast between our comfort and the suffering of the homeless. It reminds listeners to show compassion.

STANZA III

Oh Lord, is there nothing more anybody can do?

Oh Lord, there must be something you can say.

You can tell from the lines on her face,

You can see that she's been there,

Probably moved on from every place,

’Cause she didn't fit in there.

Oh, think twice, ’cause it's another day for

You and me in paradise.

Oh, think twice, it's just another day for you

You and me in paradise.

Just think about it.

Just think about it.

It's just another day for you and me in paradise.

It's just another day for you and me in paradise.

It's just another day for you and me in paradise.

Just think about it.

Questions:

1. What does the singer pray on seeing the suffering of the woman?

Ans: On seeing the woman’s suffering, the singer prays to the Lord for compassion and mercy. He wishes that people, including himself, would notice the hardships of the poor and help those in need instead of ignoring them.

2. What do the ‘lines on her face’ symbolize?

Ans: The “lines on her face” symbolize the hardship, suffering, and struggles the woman has endured over the years. They reflect a life of poverty, pain, and relentless challenges.

3. Pick out a symbol of suffering from the third stanza.

Ans: A symbol of suffering from the third stanza is the “lines on her face.” This symbol represents the long years of hardship, struggle, and pain the woman has endured in her life.

4. The woman has been moved on from every place. Who might have made her move on?

Ans: The woman has likely been moved on by shopkeepers, passers-by, or authorities who did not want her begging or staying on the streets. This shows society’s indifference and lack of compassion toward the homeless.

5. Why has the woman been moved on from every place?

Ans: The woman has been moved on from every place because society does not want homeless people lingering in public areas. People and authorities ignore her suffering and force her to leave, reflecting indifference and lack of empathy.

Appreciation of the song ‘Another Day in Paradise’

Phil Collins’ song ‘Another Day in Paradise’ tells the story of a homeless woman who pleads for help on the street but is ignored by a passer-by. The song contrasts her suffering with the comfort of others, reminding listeners to reflect on their own humanity.

The theme of the song centers on compassion, responsibility, and the difference between the privileged and the marginalized. The song is composed of three stanzas with a recurring chorus. It also uses rhyming pairs like street–feet, denies–cries, twice–paradise, etc., to create a smooth lyrical flow. Visual images (e.g., “blisters on the soles of her feet”) and auditory images (e.g., “she calls out to the man on the street”) make the scene vivid. Devices such as anaphora (e.g., “you can… you can,” “Oh Lord… Oh Lord”), repetition (“think twice”), and irony in the use of the word ‘paradise’ intensify the message of the song.

The song blends simple structure with powerful imagery and poetic devices to deliver a moving moral appeal against apathy.

3. Possible Discourses

3.1. Narrative

The grieving husband in the story ‘War’ narrated the conversation and experiences in the train to one of his friends after reaching home. Prepare the possible narrative.

AN UNFORGETTABLE DAY

My friend, yesterday was an unforgettable day for me. When we received a message from our son three days before, we were literally shocked. To see him off, we were going to Sulmona by the local train. The passengers in the train made room for my wife who was extremely sad. Everyone in the compartment noticed us. Then I thought I would explain the situation of us and the reason for my wife’s sadness. When I said that our only son was leaving to volunteer for war, a passenger said that we should thank God because his son had been sent to war the first day itself. Another passenger said that he had two sons and three nephews at the front.

There was a debate about parental love. One said that it was not like bread which can be broken into pieces and split amongst the children in equal shares. Then a stout red faced man with blood shot eyes questioned if we gave life to our children for our own benefit. We stared at him in distress. The one who had his son at the front since the first day of the war sighed and asked if there was any one of us who wouldn't gladly take his son's place at the front if he could.

He opined that if country was a natural necessity like bread, somebody must go to defend it. He added that when our sons die, they die happy and so, they didn't want our tears. He also shared an experience of receiving a message from his son before dying. He said that he was dying satisfied at having ended his life in the best way he could have wished. That was why he was not mourning. Immediately my wife turned to him and asked if his son was really dead. We stared at her. And we could see the old man struggling for words to reply. We saw his face contracted and became horribly distorted. Then to our amazement, he broke into tears, and cried bitterly. We were deeply touched his his unexpected bursting out and all of us were sad too.
