This Academic Support Material is a thoughtfully curated collection of learning materials designed to support students of Standard X in achieving excellence in their English examinations. More than a conventional study guide, this resource is the result of careful planning and the expertise of experienced educators who are well acquainted with the curriculum and the academic challenges faced by students. Its primary objective is to equip learners with effective tools, practical strategies, and clear insights that will help them secure high marks while strengthening their overall command of the English language.

Understanding the value of systematic and goal-oriented preparation, this study material offers a wide range of resources aimed at enhancing both examination performance and language proficiency. The material is structured to promote clarity, confidence, and deeper understanding, enabling students to approach their studies with focus and purpose.

As students progress through this resource, they are encouraged to use it as a guide to navigate the demands of the English syllabus. With consistent effort, strategic practice, and a positive mindset, learners can unlock their full potential and approach their examinations with assurance.

The collection features model questions, answer keys, grammar exercises, writing tips, and practical strategies for effective time management during examinations. Each section addresses common areas of difficulty and provides clear, actionable guidance to support independent and confident learning.

We extend our sincere gratitude to the students and teachers whose valuable feedback and suggestions have contributed to refining this material. It is our hope that this study material will serve as a reliable companion for students, guiding them toward success in their upcoming examinations and laying a strong foundation for future academic pursuits.

UNIT 1 - TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS

The Old Man with Enormous Wings

by Gabriel Garcia Marquez

About the Story:

One gloomy afternoon, Pelayo discovers a frail old man with enormous wings lying face down in the mud. Frightened, he and his wife Elisenda inspect the man closely. Dressed in rags and barely able to speak in an unknown language, the old man appears more like a drenched grandfather than a divine being. They assume he's a shipwrecked foreigner, but a neighbour insists he is an angel who has come for their sick child. The next day, the entire town crowds their courtyard, treating the angel like a spectacle. Pelayo locks him in the chicken coop (birds of a feather!), and when the child recovers, the couple briefly consider setting the angel free.

Instead, Elisenda capitalizes on the situation, charging an admission fee to see the angel. Pilgrims and others from afar visit the angel, hoping for miracles. The angel, passive and enduring, does not resist the indignities he suffers—being pelted with food, poked by cripples, and jeered at like a circus animal. Despite his wings, his only strength seems to be his infinite patience. The people soon lose interest when a new attraction—a spider-woman with a tragic tale—arrives. Still, the couple become wealthy, build a mansion, and improve their lives, ignoring the fact that the angel's condition has worsened.

As time passes; the angel becomes weaker, grows almost blind, and remains bedraggled, but he survives. One day, as Elisenda cuts onions in the kitchen, she sees the angel struggling to fly. At last, he lifts off clumsily and disappears into the distance. Elisenda watches until he becomes a mere dot on the horizon, relieved that the strange burden has finally left their lives.

1. Read the excerpt taken from the story A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings and answer the questions that follow.

The man was dressed like a ragpicker. There were only a few faded hairs left on his bald skull and very few teeth in his mouth. His pitiful condition seemed that of a drenched great-grandfather. This took away any sense of grandeur he might have had. His huge buzzard wings, dirty and half-plucked, were entangled in the mud.

They looked at him so long and so closely that Pelayo and Elisenda very soon overcame their surprise. In the end they found him familiar. Then they dared speak to him. He answered in an incomprehensible dialect with a strong sailor's voice.

They concluded that he was a lonely castaway from some foreign ship, wrecked by the storm. Then they called in a neighbour woman to see him. All she needed was one look to show them their mistake."He's an angel," she told them. "He must have been coming for the child, but the poor fellow is so old that the rain knocked him down."

1. The description of the old man as “dressed like a ragpicker” mainly highlights his …….. .

A) royal appearance B) supernatural power

C) poor and miserable condition D) mysterious origin

2. Why did Pelayo and Elisenda initially conclude that the old man was a lonely castaway?

A) He claimed to be from another land TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS

B) He spoke in a familiar language

C) His wings were injured

D) He spoke in an incomprehensible dialect and looked weather-beaten

3. Which of the following details suggest the old man’s weakness and helplessness?

A) Very few teeth in his mouth

B) Huge buzzard wings entangled in the mud

C) Strong sailor’s voice

D) Pitiful condition like a drenched great-grandfather

Choose the right option

i) A, B, and D ii) B, C and D

iii) A and D iv) None of the above

4. How did the neighbour woman’s reaction differ from that of Pelayo and Elisenda, and what conclusion did she draw about the old man?

5. Pick out the Noun Phrase in the subject position and Verb phrase in the sentence that follows

‘His pitiful condition seemed that of a drenched great-grandfather.’

2. Read the excerpt taken from the story A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings and answer the questions that follow.

The angel was the only one who took no part in his own act. He spent his time trying to get comfortable in his borrowed nest. At first, they tried to make him eat some mothballs. But he ate nothing but eggplant mush.

His only supernatural virtue seemed to be patience. He was quite patient when the hens pecked at him, searching for the parasites in his wings. He was patient again when the cripples pulled out his feathers to touch their limbs with. He remained patient when even the most merciful threw stones at him. After all, they were only trying to get him to rise so that they could see him standing.

It so happened that during those days there arrived in the town a travelling show. The main attraction was a woman who had been changed into a spider by a burst of thunder and lightning. The admission fee to see her was less than the fee to see the angel. So, the people flocked to see her. They were also permitted to ask her all manner of questions about her absurd state.

1. Why does the author say that the angel “took no part in his own act”?

A) He enjoyed entertaining the crowd B) He actively performed miracles

C) He remainIn the Attic- Wladyslaw Szpilmaned passive and indifferent to the attention

D) He was unaware of the people around him

2. What food did the angel finally eat?

A) Mothballs B) Fruits and vegetables

C) Bread and water D) Eggplant mush

3. Which incidents from the passage show the angel's patience?

A) Hens pecking at his wings B) Cripples pulling out his feathers

C) People throwing stones at him D) People asking him questions

Choose the right option

i) A, B and D ii) B, C and D

iii) A, B and C iv) B, C and D

4. Why did the people lose interest in the angel and flock to see the woman in the travelling show?

5. Find a word from the passage that means strange or ridiculous.

In the Attic
by Wladyslaw Szpilman

About the Story:

"In the Attic" is an excerpt from Wladyslaw Szpilman's survivor testimony tiled " The Pianist". It revolves around the unusual friendship between Szpilman and Captain Wilm Hosenfeld, a German officer. Hosenfeld discovers Szpilman hiding in an abandoned building and asks him to play the piano. Amidst the unrest and the precarious circumstances that prevailed, Szpilman plays Chopin's Nocturne in C- sharp minor, which moves Hosenfeld deeply. The officer offers to take Szpilman to a safer location and it is then that he learns that Szpilman was a Jew.

Instead of turning him in, he offers to help Szpilman and advices him to stay in a loft which was a safer place than the loft where he had originally hid. Hosenfeld promises to bring Szpilman food. At this point Szpilman realises that he is being helped by a German officer. Hosenfeld admits to the fact that he is ashamed of identifying himself as a German and feels a sense of horror and shame at what has been happening. Despite being on opposite sides of the conflict, Szpilman and Hosenfeld find common ground through music. After three days Hosenfeld returns with several loaves of bread and jam which would eventually keep Szpilman alive for days to come. He tells Szpilman that the war would soon be over and that he must 'hang on'. The gesture instills in him confidence and a renewed hope for survival. Szpilman continues to live in isolation often without human contact for long intervals of time with the only sound he hears is artillery fire and of soldiers going up and down the stairs where he was hiding. He also endures extreme cold, lack of sanitation and pitiable living conditions amidst living in constant fear of discovery, arrest and deportation to concentration camps.

The officer returns one last time on December 12 and brings along with him a larger supply of bread and a warm eiderdown. He tells Szpilman that he would be leaving Warsaw and that he must under no circumstance lose heart. Hosenfeld reminds Szpilman that if they have survived the inferno for over five years, it was God's will. At the parting moment, Szpilman expresses his gratitude and promises to repay Hosenfeld's kindness and assistance that helped him survive the war. That was the last time he saw the officer. Szpilman survives another year. The passage of time gnaws his conscience and he recounts the loss of his family, the traumatic experiences distress him.

On the morning of January 15, Szpilman listens to announcements on the street of the defeat of Germany 28and the liberation of Warsaw. He stays in a delusional state not knowing what to do or how to react to the news. Then he comes across voices of women and children. He runs downstairs and peeps out to get a view of the street and finds a woman police officer and a lady carrying a bundle on her head. As Szpilman tries to talk to the lady, she shrieks in fear seeing him wearing a German coat and suspecting that he is a German. Szpilman was wearing the coat Captain Hosenfeld had given him which leads to the misunderstanding and him being reprimanded by Polish soldiers. Later, the soldiers understand the situation and Szpilman is rescued and finally walks free. The friendship between Szpilman and Hosenfeld remains a powerful testament to the human capacity for connection and compassion, even in the most challenging circumstances. Szpilman's story is a testament to the human spirit's ability to persevere in the face of adversity.

1. Read the excerpt taken from the story In the Attic and answer the questions that follow.

He looked at me more closely. Then his glance fell on the door to the other room. An idea seemed to have struck him. "Come with me, will you?" We went into the next room where a piano stood by the wall. The officer pointed to the instrument "Play something!"

I looked enquiringly at him and did not move. He obviously sensed my fears, since he added reassuringly, "It's all right, you can play. If anyone comes, you can hide in the larder and I'll say it was me trying the instrument out."

When I placed my fingers on the keyboard they shook. I hadn't practised for two and half years, my fingers were stiff and covered with a thick layer of dirt, and I had not cut my nails for some weeks. I played Chopin's Nocturne in C sharp minor. When I finished, the silence seemed gloomy and eerie. I heard a shot down below outside the building – a harsh, loud German noise.

The officer looked at me in silence. After a while he sighed, and muttered, "All the same, you shouldn't stay here. I'll take you out of the city, to a village. You'll be safer there." I shook my head. "I can't leave this place," I said firmly. Only now did he seem to understand my real reason for hiding among the ruins.

1. Why did the officer take the narrator into the next room?

A) To search the room
B) To hide from others
C) To ask him to play the piano
D) To rest for a while

2. Which piece of music did the narrator play on the piano?

A) Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata
B) Chopin's Nocturne in C sharp minor
C) Mozart's Symphony No. 40
D) Bach's Prelude in C

3. Which details from the passage reveal the narrator's poor physical condition?

A) His fingers were shaking
B) His nails were uncut for weeks
C) His fingers were stiff and dirty
D) He refused to play the piano

Choose the right option.

i) A, B and D
ii) A, C and D
iii) A, B and C
iv) B, C and D

4. Why did the narrator refuse the officer's offer to take him to a village?
5. Find a word from the passage that means dark, frightening, and mysterious.

*2.Read the excerpt taken from the story In the Attic and answer the questions that follow.

On 14 January unusual noises in the building and the street outside woke me. Soldiers ran up and down the stairs, and I heard agitated, nervous voices. Early in the morning of 15 January, the sound of artillery from the previously silent front was heard. The gTRIALS AND TRIUMPHSround and the walls of the building shook under the constant dull thunder. Three hours later the heavy artillery fire died down again, but I was as nervous as ever. I did not sleep at all that night. The street fighting would begin at any moment, and I could be killed. The night passed peacefully. Around one o'clock I heard the remaining Germans leaving the building. Silence fell. I could not even hear the steps of the guards outside the building. Not until the early hours of the next day was the silence broken by a loud and resonant noise, the last sound I had expected. Radio loudspeakers set up somewhere nearby were broadcasting announcements in Polish of the defeat of Germany and the liberation of Warsaw.

The Germans had withdrawn without a fight. As soon as it began to get light, I prepared feverishly for my first venture out. My officer had left me a German military overcoat to keep me from freezing. I had already put it on when I suddenly heard the rhythmic footsteps of guards out in the road again. Had the Soviet and Polish troops withdrawn, then?

1. What first woke the narrator on 14 January?

A) The sound of radio announcements
B) Unusual noises in the building and the street
C) The footsteps of Polish soldiers
D) Heavy artillery fire

2. Which announcement was broadcast through the radio loudspeakers?

A) The beginning of street fighting
B) The retreat of Soviet troops
C) The defeat of Germany and liberation of Warsaw
D) A curfew order for civilians

3. Which details show the narrator’s fear and tension during the events described?

A) He did not sleep the entire night

B) The ground and walls shook from artillery fire

C) He prepared feverishly to go out

D) He heard announcements in Polish

Choose the right option

i) A, D and C ii) B, C and D

iii) A, B and D iv) A, B and C

4. Why was the narrator confused and anxious when he heard footsteps again after wearing the German overcoat?

5. Identify the Noun Phrase in the subject position and Verb Phrase in the sentence below.

The ground and the walls of the building shook under the constant dull thunder.

Breaking Barriers, I will Fly
by Srikanth Bolla

About the Speech:

Srikanth Bolla, born blind in 1991 in Seetharamapuram, Andhra Pradesh, is a true icon of resilience and innovation.Despite hurdles in his early education, he pursued the study of science, eventually taking a degree in management from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT)

In 2012, Srikanth co-founded Bollant Industries with the stated mission of \providing employment opportunities to individuals with disabilities and to promote sustainable manufacturing. Starting with a modest amount of capital, the company achieved an annual turnover exceeding ₹150 crore in 2018. Bollant Industries specialises in eco- friendly products, such as areca leaf plates, cups, trays, and biodegradable packing materials from recycled paper and agricultural waste.

Bollant Industries is remarkably inclusive, with differently-abled individuals forming a significant part of its workforce. It has expanded its operations across various states in India, and has received backing from prominent investors like Ratan Tata. Srikanth’s journey earned him a spot in Forbes Asia’s 30 Under 30 list in 2017. His life story was depicted in the 2024 biopic Srikanth, starring Rajkummar

1. Read the excerpt taken from Breaking Barriers, I will Fly and answer the questions that follow.

When I was born without eyes, society saw me as a burden. Some even suggested that I should be smothered. But my parents showered on me immense love and care. They felt they were the richest couple in the world, and I consider myself the luckiest person.

As a child, I spent much of my time with my father in the fields. However, my short legs made it difficult for me to help. My father began to think that perhaps the people who doubted my future might be right. He realized I didn't fit into the traditional farming model. Then he decided that education was to be my path.

Despite the challenges of trekking to a faraway school and being ignored by teachers and classmates, I persevered. For two years, I sat on the last bench, excluded from activities. I then felt like the poorest child in the world—not on account of lack of money, but because of loneliness and isolation.

Eventually, my parents and relatives decided that I should study in a school with students like me. So, I was sent to a special school in Hyderabad. There I excelled, becoming an outstanding student, earning top ranks, and representing India in chess and cricket. I had the privilege of working with Dr A.P.J. Abdul Kalam on various projects like the Lead India Youth Transformation Project.

1. Why did society initially consider the narrator a burden?
   A) He was born into a poor family B) He was born without eyes
   C) He could not help in the fields D) He was ignored by teachers
2. What made the narrator's father decide that education should be his path?
   A) His success in sports B) His love for books
   C) His inability to fit into traditional farming work D) Advice from teachers
3. Which factors contributed to the narrator feeling like the "poorest child in the world"?
   A) Lack of money B) Loneliness and isolation
   C) Being ignored by teachers and classmates D) Difficulty in walking long distances

Choose the right option

   i)A and C ii) B and C
   iii) C and D iv) All the above

4. How did studying in a special school change the narrator's life?
5. Find a word from the passage that means continued to make efforts despite difficulties.

2. Read the excerpt taken from Breaking Barriers, I will Fly and answer the questions that follow.

We established a platform, Bollant Industries together with my partner, to find, rehabilitate, nurture, and reintegrate disabled individuals into society, rather than separate them from it. We have supported over 3,000 students in education, vocational rehabilitation, sports, and much more. Our company now employs over 150 disabled individuals. It grosses over a million dollars in sales. But we're still at the initial stage of our growth, with much more to do.

I want to leave you with three lessons. First, show compassion and help others thrive. True wealth doesn't come from money but from the happiness of others. Second, remove loneliness from people's lives, as it is the worst form of poverty. Finally, remember that when you do something good, you will be the first to benefit. The world may look at me and say, "Srikanth, you can do nothing." But I look at the world and say, "I can do anything." Thank you.

1. What is the main purpose of establishing Bollant Industries?

A) To make maximum profit

B) To provide employment only to skilled workers

C) To rehabilitate and reintegrate disabled individuals into society

D) To separate disabled individuals from mainstream society

2. Which of the following best reflects the current status of Bollant Industries?

A) It has completed its mission successfully

B) It is still in the early stage of growth

C) It employs more than 3,000 people

D) It earns no profit

3. Which of the following activities are supported by Bollant Industries?

A) Education B) Vocational rehabilitation

C) Sports D) Political training

Choose the right option

i) A, B and C ii) B, C and D

iii) A, C and D iv) All the above

4. What three lessons does the speaker want to leave with the audience?

A Phoenix Rises
by Twinkle Khanna

About the story:

Arunachalam Muruganantham (also known as 'Padman') is a well-known innovator and social entrepreneur born in 1962 in Coimbatore, Tamil Nadu. He grew up in a family of handloom weavers. After his father died in a road accident, Muruganantham dropped out of school at the age of 14 to support his family.

Fighting against the challenges, Muruganantham's determination led him to design inexpensive machinery to produce sanitary napkins. This won him the National Innovation Foundation's Grassroots Technological Innovations Award in 2006. The innovation brought revolutionary changes to menstrual health and hygiene for rural women in India and other countries. Muruganantham's achievements have by now been recognised globally. He was named one of Time Magazine's '100 Most Influential People in the World' in 2014. He also received the Padma Shri award from the Indian government in 2016.

As a social entrepreneur, Muruganantham founded Jayashree Industries, which markets his low-cost machines to groups of rural women across India and elsewhere. His work has impacted millions of lives, providing affordable solutions to problems relating to menstrual hygiene and empowering women. Muruganantham's story is the subject of the documentary Menstrual Man; and the The Legend of Lakshmi Prasad. He is also a motivational speaker, sharing his story in places like the IIMs in Ahmedabad, and Bangalore, IIT Bombay, and Harvard University.

Having seen his father working with cotton yarn, he knew that ten grams of cotton would barely cost ten paise. But here he was paying four rupees for each of these pads. He put the pad back in the packet. Back home, Bablu secretly handed over the pack to Gowri.

Gowri was not pleased. “If Shalu and I start buying these packets every month, then let alone curd and ghee, we will not even have enough money to buy milk.” Bablu looked at her dejectedly. But he then determined to start a new project.

He pulled out a pair of scissors, a needle and some thread, cotton and cloth from his bag. He began flattening the cotton between his hands as if he were spreading out dough to make a chapati. Within twenty- four hours of first touching a sanitary napkin, Bablu had managed to make his own. But he was not able to make a useful one as he could not make out the material used by the brands. Months passed and Bablu procured different qualities of cotton and other materials to make pads.

1. Why was Bablu shocked by the price of the sanitary pads?
   A) They were difficult to find B) He knew cotton was very cheap
   C) The shopkeeper cheated him D) Gowri refused to use them
2. Why was Gowri unhappy with Bablu buying sanitary pads?
   A) She disliked the quality of the pads B) She felt they were unnecessary
   C) They were too expensive for the family D) She preferred homemade pads
3. Which actions show Bablu’s determination to solve the problem?
   A) He secretly handed the pack to Gowri
   B) He decided to start a new project
   C) He experimented with cotton and other materials
   D) He complained about the price to the shopkeeper

However, his experiments and his obsession caused some unrest even in the family. His mother beseeched him to stop the experiments saying that the whole family would be disgraced by his sordid interest in women's menstrual cycles. The news was gradually spreading in the village and the villagers entangled the whole family in a mesh of coarse whispers and rude glances.

Bablu was gloomy for a while at the thought of stopping his experiments. But he devised an idea to conduct experiments on himself rather than others. With the help of a friend, he collected some blood. Using a rubber tube, he experimented with the napkins himself. One day, Lata, his neighbour Parul's daughter, happened to see this.

The next day all kinds of rumours spread over the small town. Unable to bear the humiliation, Bablu's wife left him. She said she would only return when he gave up his madness. His mother too followed suit. He had lost his wife, his family, his friends, and money that he could not afford to waste, all in pursuit of the sanitary pad project. Bablu was a simple welder whose life had been ripped apart. And all because he had wanted to give Gowri a gift: a gift for all the poor women in the village and outside it

1. Why did Bablu's mother ask him to stop his experiments?
   A) They were too expensive
   B) They took too much time
   C) She feared the family would be disgraced
   D) The experiments were unsuccessful
2. What made Bablu decide to conduct experiments on himself?
   A) Lack of materials
   B) Fear of villagers
   C) To avoid involving others and stop unrest
   D) His wife's encouragement
3. Which factors contributed to Bablu's isolation and suffering?

UNIT III - TRUMPETS OF CHANGE

War

by Luigi Pirandello

About the Story:

Luigi Pirandello's short story War is set in the context of World War I. The action takes place on a train carrying a group of passengers, most of whom are parents of soldiers fighting at the front. Among them is a grieving couple whose only son has recently been called to war. The mother, devastated by this, remains silent and withdrawn, while the father, though sorrowful, attempts to stay calm and composed. As the train moves, the passengers engage in a conversation about their children and cost of war.

The discussion soon turns into a debate about patriotic duty. One father, whose son has died in battle, argues that parents should not mourn selfishly. He claims that once children grow up, they belong to the country, not to their families. He insists that soldiers go to war for honour, and parents should take pride in the sacrifice rather than grieve the loss. His words seem to carry conviction, and for the moment, the other passengers appear to accept his reasoning.

The grieving father whose son had recently been conscripted listens carefully to the discussion but does not speak at first. The other passengers try to comfort themselves by holding on to the idea that their sons are destined to die for a noble cause. They convince themselves that the children are fulfilling their patriotic duty and that as parents they should be proud rather than sad. This notion provides some relief, and they try to suppress their sorrow.

However, as the conversation progresses, the man who had at first spoken so confidently about the nobility of sacrifice begins to show signs of grief and pain. His voice starts to tremble, and his expressions betray the enormity of his sorrow.This transformation is triggered by the grieving mother who had been silent. At one point, she breaks in with the question to the man if his son is truly dead. The man is unable to respond at first. Then, overwhelmed by emotion, he breaks down, realizing at that very moment the depth of his suffering and the extent of his self-deception.

This transforms the atmosphere in the compartment. The passengers, who had been trying to rationalize their pain now recognize the undeniable grief in their own hearts and souls. They had tried to convince themselves that the sacrifices of their sons were necessary and honourable, but now they see they cannot escape the unbearable weight of inevitable loss. Even the strongest conviction of patriotic duty cannot negate the sorrow of losing one’s child.

In this story, Pirandello shows us little we know ourselves. People often successfully hide their pain even from themselves behind a dark curtain of high- sounding ideals. The curtain will, however, sooner or later, be ripped away from our own eyes at least. The story highlights the universal anguish of parents who send their children to war. It is a powerful reflection on the cost of ‘duty’ and the explosion of suppressed suffering.

1. Read the excerpt taken from the story War and answer the questions that follow.

The passengers who had left Rome by the night express had to stop until dawn at the small station of Fabriano. They then needed to continue their journey by the old- fashioned local train to Sulmona. At dawn, in a stuffy and smoky second class carriage in which a few people had already spent the night, a stout woman in deep mourning was hoisted in. Behind her, puffing and moaning, followed her husband—a tiny man, thin and weak, his face death-white. His eyes were small and bright and he looked shy and uneasy. Having at last taken a seat, he politely thanked the passengers who had helped his wife by making room for her. Then he turned round to the woman and politely inquired: “Are you all right, dear?" The wife, instead of answering, pulled up the collar of her coat to hide her face. "Nasty world," muttered the husband with a sad smile.

And he felt it his duty to explain to his travelling companions that the poor woman was to be pitied. The war was taking away from her their only son, a boy of twenty. Both of them had devoted their entire life to him. They had even broken up their home at Sulmona to follow him to Rome, where he had to go as a student. They allowed him to volunteer for war with an assurance that for at least six months he would not be sent to the war front. And now, all of a sudden, they received a wire from him saying that he was due to leave in three days' time. They were now going to see him off.

1. Why did the passengers have to stop at the station of Fabriano?

A) The train was delayed due to war B) They had to change to a local train

C) The station was their final destination D) The train broke down

2. How is the husband described in the passage?

A) Tall and strong B) Loud and confident

C) Tiny, weak, and uneasy D) Angry and aggressive

3. Which details show the parents' deep attachment to their son?

A) They broke up their home to follow him to Rome

B) They allowed him to volunteer for the war

C) They devoted their entire life to him

D) They were travelling to see him off

Choose the right option

i) A, C and D ii) A, B anC

The woman, bundled in a corner, had been sitting and listening till he finished. For the last three months, she had been trying to find in the words of her husband and her friends, something to console her. She wanted something that might show her how a mother should send her son to a probable danger of life. Her grief had been greater in seeing that nobody—as she thought—could share her feelings.

But now the words of the traveller amazed and almost stunned her. She suddenly realised that it wasn't the others who were wrong, but herself. It was she who could not rise up to the height of those other fathers and mothers. They seemed willing to resign themselves, without crying, not only to the departure of their sons but even to their death.

She lifted her head and bent over from her corner. She was trying to listen with great attention to the details which the stout man was giving to his companions. He was telling them the way his son had fallen as a hero, for his Country, happy and without regrets. It seemed to her that she had stumbled into a world so far unknown to her. And she was so pleased to hear everyone joining in congratulating that brave father, so stoically speaking of his child's death.

1. Why had the woman been listening carefully to the words of her husband and friends for the last three months?

A) To argue with them
B) To distract herself from her sorrow
C) To find something that could console her
D) To understand the rules of war

2. What effect did the traveller's words have on the woman?

A) They made her angrier
B) They confused her completely
C) They amazed and almost stunned her
D) They made her leave the compartment

3. Which details show the woman's change in attitude?

A) She realised she herself was unable to rise to the height of other parents
B) She listened attentively to the stout man's account
C) She felt happy hearing people congratulate the brave father
D) She remained silent in her corner

Choose the right option

i) A, B and C
ii) A, C and D
iii) B, C and D
iv) All the above

4. How did the woman's understanding of her grief change after listening to the traveller?

5. Find a word from the passage that means calmly accepting suffering or pain without complaint.

A Piece of String
by Guy de Maupassant

About the Story:

Guy de Maupassant's short story A Piece of String is set in a small French village and revolves around Hauchecome, an innocent peasant, whose life is turned upside down by a simple misunderstanding. The story begins on a market day in Goderville, when the villagers gather to trade goods and share news. Hauchecome, a humble and thrifty farmer, stoops to pick up a small piece of string on the ground, as he believes that anything useful should be saved. Unfortunately, this action is witnessed by Malandain, an old enemy, who misinterprets it and spreads the rumour that Hauchecome had picked up something precious.

When news spreads that a pocketbook containing money has gone missing, suspicion immediately falls on Hauchecome. He is summoned to the Mayor's office, where the Mayor, a pompous personality, questions him sternly. Hauchecome tries to explain that he had only picked up a piece of string, showing it to the Mayor in an attempt to establish his innocence. However, the Mayor does not believe him, insisting that Malandain, a reputable man, had seen him pick up the pocketbook. Hauchecome is allowed to go, but the seed of doubt has been planted in the minds of the villagers

The villagers crowd around Hauchecome, demanding an explanation and making fun of his protestations of innocence. The man tirelessly retells the story of the piece of string to anyone who will listen, hoping to clear his name. Even when the pocketbook is found and returned by someone else, the villagers continue to suspect Hauchecome of being involved in the 'fraud.' They laugh at his explanations, dismissing these as lies or excuses.

Hauchecome becomes obsessed with defending his honour and clearing his name. Each time he tells the story, he is met with scorn and disbelief. Through repeated accusations and ridicule, the villagers drive Hauchecome to despair. The weight of suspicion breaks him down. Finally, he falls ill and dies, haunted by the injustice of his experience. In his final delirious moments, he still mumbles the tale of the piece of string, and dies a victim of gossip, misunderstanding and prejudice.

1. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

Hauchecome had just arrived at Goderville, and he was walking towards the public square. Then he saw a little piece of string on the ground. He thought that everything useful ought to be picked up. He took the bit of thin cord from the ground and began to roll it carefully. Then he noticed Malandain, on the threshold of his door, looking at him. They were on bad terms with each other. Hauchecome was seized with shame to be seen thus by his enemy. He concealed his find quickly in his trousers pocket. He pretended to be looking on the ground for something else. Then, he went towards the market.

He was soon lost in the noisy crowd. Soon, the square was deserted. At the tavern, the great hall was full of people eating. An appetising odour of roast meat rose from the hearth which made everybody's mouth water. The dishes were passed and emptied, as were the jugs of cider. The peasants discussed the crops, and their purchases and sales. The weather was favourable for the green things but not for the wheat. Suddenly the drum beat in the courtyard outside the tavern. Everybody rose, except a few, and ran to the door or to the windows, their mouths still full. After the public crier had ceased his drum beating, he called out in a jerky voice:

"This is hereby made known to the inhabitants of Goderville, and to all persons present at the market: There was lost this morning on the road, between nine and ten o'clock, a black leather pocketbook containing five hundred francs and some business papers. The finder is requested to return the same with all haste to the Mayor's office. There will be twenty francs reward."

1. Why did Hauchecome pick up the piece of string?

A) He wanted to sell it in the market
B) He thought everything useful should be picked up
C) He mistook it for a purse
D) He wanted to hide it from Malandain

2. Why did Hauchecome feel ashamed when he saw Malandain?

A) Malandain had accused him earlier
B) He was stealing something
C) Malandain was his enemy and saw him picking up the string
D) Malandain laughed at him

3. Which details show Hauchecome's attempt to hide his action?

A) He quickly hid the string in his pocket
B) He pretended to look for something else on the ground
C) He immediately left the town
D) He went towards the market

Choose the right option

i) A and B
ii) B and C
iii) A, C and D
iv) All the above

4. What announcement did the public crier make, and why did it draw everyone's attention?

5. Identify the Noun Phrase and Verb Phrase in the sentence below.

A black leather pocketbook containing five hundred francs and some business papers.

2. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

The next day about one o'clock in the afternoon, an employee in a shop returned the pocketbook. The man claimed to have found the object in the road. Not knowing how to read, he had given it to his employer.

The news spread through the neighbourhood. Hauchecome was informed of it. He immediately began to recount his story with its happy climax. He was in triumph. He talked of his adventure all day long. He told it on the highway to people who were passing by, in the wine shop to people who were drinking there and to persons coming out of church the following Sunday. He stopped strangers to tell them about it.

He was calm now, and yet something disturbed him. People had the air of joking while they listened. They did not seem convinced. He seemed to feel that remarks were being made behind his back. The next Tuesday, he went to the market at Goderville, just to discuss the case. Malandain, standing at his door, began to laugh on seeing him pass. When he was seated at the table in the tavern, he began to explain the affair.

1. Who returned the lost pocketbook the next day?

A) Hauchecome B) Malandain
C) An employee in a shop D) The Mayor

2. How did Hauchecome react after hearing that the pocketbook was found?

A) He remained silent and calm B) He felt ashamed and avoided people
C) He began to recount his story repeatedly D) He left Goderville

3. Which details show that Hauchecome was becoming uneasy despite his calmness?

A) People joked while listening to him
B) He felt remarks were being made behind his back
C) Malandain laughed on seeing him
D) He continued to visit the market

Choose the right option

i) A and B ii) B and C
iii) A, B and C iv) All the above

4. Why did Hauchecome feel disturbed even though he was calm and confident about his story?
5. Identify the Noun Phrase and Verb Phrase in the sentence below.

An employee in a shop returned the pocketbook.

UNIT IV - WOODLAND WHISPERS

Trills and Thrills: Birdwatching in India
by Dr Salim Ali

Read the excerpt taken from the autobiography Trills and Thrills: Birdwatching in India and answer the questions that follow.

My journey by the romantic Cochin Forest Tramway was in February 1946, shortly before it was dismantled to make way for the gigantic Parambikulam hydro-electric project. The huge dam and reservoir have now completely submerged Parambikulam and all the lovely country around it. We reached Parambikulam just as it was getting dark. In the verandah of the forest bungalow, I found a large group of Kadar adivasis, and in their midst, a bare-footed ‘topless’ European male in crumpled khaki shorts.

We soon introduced ourselves. He was an Austrian anthropologist, Baron Omar Rolf. He claimed ornithology to be his second love and expressed great keenness on accompanying me the next morning.

Led by a forest guard, we were stalking along a narrow animal trail through dense tall grassland above five feet high – the right kind of habitat for the Broad-tailed Grass Warbler.

1. Who did the narrator meet in the verandah of the forest bungalow at Parambikulam?

2. When did the narrator travel by the Cochin Forest Tramway?

A) January 1947 B) February 1946
C) March 1945 D) December 1946

3. Why was the Cochin Forest Tramway dismantled?

A) To build a railway station
B) To make way for agricultural expansion
C) To construct the Parambikulam hydro-electric project
D) To create a wildlife sanctuary

4. Pick out an instance of how modernisation affects the environment.

5. Pick out the Noun Phrase and Verb Phrase from the sentence given below.

The huge dam and reservoir has now completely submerged Parambikulam.

2. Read the excerpt taken from the autobiography Trills and Thrills: Birdwatching in India and answer the questions that follow.

Ornithology may sometimes entail hazards of a different kind. I recall one particularly hair-raising incident along the Himalayan trail from Almora to the Lipu Lekh Pass on my way to Lake Manasarovar and Mount Kailas in 1945. It was at a particularly narrow part of the trail with a thousand feet of vertical scarp on one side and the roaring Kali river some 300 feet vertically down the other. The porters pitched the tent there, though I had walked ahead of them. Just at that moment a tiny bird – how well I remember that Yellow-naped Yuhina! – got up to the top of a bush, some yards away on the flanking hillside.

Just as I got it in the field of my glasses, it hopped a bit further up. So, to get a better view I took a step back, with the glasses still glued to my eyes, entirely unmindful of where I was standing with my back to the abyss. As I did so, I felt a small pebble slip from under my heel and heard a faint continuing clatter as it went rolling down the hill. Still unmindful of anything untoward, I casually looked back over my shoulder. What I saw literally made my hair stand on end. In a flash I realised that I was on the very edge of beyond two inches more and I would have followed that rollicking pebble.

1. Where did the narrator have the hair-raising experience?

A) Near Lake Manasarovar
B) On the Himalayan trail from Almora to the Lipu Lekh Pass
C) On the banks of the Kali river
D) At Mount Kailas

2. What distracted the narrator and led to the dangerous situation?

A) The roaring sound of the Kali river B) The narrowness of the trail
C) A tiny bird he was observing D) The arrival of the porters

3. Which details show the seriousness of the danger the narrator was in?

A) The trail had a thousand-foot vertical scarp B) The Kali river was roaring below
C) He was only two inches away from the edge D) The porters pitched the tent nearby

Choose the right option

i) A, B and C ii) A and B
iii) B and D iv) All the above

4. Why did the narrator realise that he was in grave danger only after hearing the pebble roll down?

5. Find a word from the passage that means a deep, dangerous drop.

UNIT V - SONGS OF THE SELF

Beloved Boles
by Maxim Gorky

About the Story

Beloved Boles by Maxim Gorky is a touching story about loneliness, imagination, and the deep human need for affection. The story is narrated by a young student living in Moscow, whose room faces that of a Polish woman named Teresa. At first, the student is uncomfortable around her. Teresa is tall, strong, and rough- looking, with a loud bass voice, bushy eyebrows, and a coarse face. She often appears drunk, with messy hair and bleary eyes, and her loud greetings make him uneasy. Because of her strange and intimidating appearance, he always keeps his door shut when she is at home.

One day, Teresa approaches the student with an unusual request. She asks him to write a letter to a man named Boleslav Kashput, whom she lovingly calls “Boles,” her “beloved,” her “heart of gold.” Though surprised by her tender words, the student writes the letter as she dictates. When she returns later asking him to write a reply “from Boles,” he grows suspicious. Her nervousness and trembling hands confuse him further. Finally, irritated, he accuses her of lying and trying to fool him. Hurt and frightened, Teresa runs away in distress. Feeling uneasy after their encounter, the student visits her room and discovers the truth. Teresa breaks down and confesses that Boles does not exist at all. She has invented him because she has no one in the world who shows her affection or speaks to her kindly. The letters allow her to imagine that someone loves her and cares for her. Writing to Boles and receiving replies makes her feel less lonely and gives her the illusion of being valued. When others read the letters aloud, she feels, for a moment, that Boles is truly by her side. Hearing her painful confession, the student is overwhelmed with sympathy and shame for misunderstanding her.

From that day onwards, the student begins writing letters to Boles and replies to Teresa regularly, twice a week. She listens to them and weeps loudly, moved by the imaginary affection she longs for so deeply. In return, she mends his torn clothes and looks after his small needs. Her simple acts of care show her gratitude for the emotional comfort the letters provide. After some months, Teresa is arrested for unknown reasons, and the narrator believes she must be dead now. Reflecting on her life, he realises how people like Teresa, who have suffered bitterness and loneliness, hunger more than anyone for kindness and tenderness. The story ends with a powerful message: while society judges people from the outside, it often fails to see their emotional pain, and the lack of love can drive people to create their own fragile fantasies to survive.

1. Read the excerpt taken from Beloved Boles and answer the questions that follow.

An acquaintance of mine once told me this story:

When I was a student at Moscow, I happened to live alongside a Polish woman, Teresa by name. She was tall and strong, with bushy black eyebrows, dark brown hair and a large coarse face. The gleam of her dark eyes, her thick bass* voice, and her muscular vigour, horrified me. I lived on the top floor and her room was opposite mine. I never left my door open when I knew her to be at home. Sometimes I chanced to meet her on the staircase or in the yard, and she would smile at me. Occasionally, I saw her drunk, with bleary eyes, and tousled hair. On such occasions she would speak to me.

"How d'ye do, Mr Student!" she'd say with a stupid laugh. I should have liked to change my quarters; but my little chamber was a nice one. There was such a wide view from the window, and it was always so quiet in the street below–so I endured. One morning I was sprawling on my couch, trying to find some sort of excuse for not attending my class. The door opened, and Teresa's bass voice resounded:

"Good health to you, Mr Student!"

"What do you want?" I asked. I saw that she was confused. This was very unusual for her.

"Sir! I want to beg a favour of you. Will you grant it?"

I lay there silent.

"I want to send a letter home, that's what it is," she said; her voice was beseeching, soft, timid. I jumped, sat down at my table, took a sheet of paper, and said:

"Come here, sit down, and dictate!"

1. How does the narrator initially feel about Teresa?

A) He admires her strength
B) He is frightened and uncomfortable around her
C) He feels friendly towards her
D) He is indifferent to her presence

2. Why did the narrator not change his quarters despite disliking Teresa?

A) He could not afford another room
B) Teresa persuaded him to stay
C) He liked his room and its surroundings
D) He feared meeting new neighbours

3. Which details show Teresa's usual intimidating nature?

A) Her thick bass voice
B) Her muscular vigour
C) Her timid and beseeching tone
D) Her coarse facial features

Choose the right option

i) A, B and D
ii) A and C
iii) B, C and D
iv) All the above

4. What change does the narrator notice in Teresa when she comes to ask for a favour?
5. Find a word from the passage that means unkempt or untidy.

2. Read the excerpt taken from Beloved Boles and answer the questions that follow.

And thenceforth, regularly, twice a week, I wrote a letter to Boles, and an answer from Boles to Teresa. She, of course, listened to them, and wept like anything. She roared, I should say, with her bass voice. And in return for my service, she began to mend the holes I had in my socks, shirts, and other articles of clothing. Three months later she was thrown into prison for some reason or the other and by now she must surely be dead.

My acquaintance shook the ash from his cigarette, looked pensively up at the sky, and thus concluded: Well, well, the more a human creature has tasted of bitter things, the more it hungers after the sweet things of life. And we, wrapped in the rags of our virtues, regard others through the mist of our self- sufficiency. Convinced of our righteousness, we do not understand this.

And the whole thing turns out pretty stupidly–and very cruelly. But enough of this. It is all as old as the hills. So old that it is a shame to speak of it. Very old indeed–yes, that's what it is!

1. Why did Teresa weep while listening to the letters?

A) They reminded her of her hardships
B) They were badly written
C) They brought her emotional comfort and memories
D) They contained bad news

2. How did Teresa repay the narrator for writing the letters?

A) By giving him money
B) By cooking meals for him
C) By mending his clothes
D) By protecting him from others

3. Which statements reflect the acquaintance's reflection on human nature?

A) People who suffer value sweetness more deeply
B) Humans judge others through self-righteousness
C) Everyone is naturally kind and understanding
D) People often fail to understand others' pain

Choose the right option

i) A, B and D
ii) A and C
iii) B, C and D
iv) All the above

4. What message does the acquaintance convey through his concluding remarks?
5. Find a word from the passage that means thoughtfully or deeply.

Préférence Nationale
by Fatou Diome

About the Story:

Fatou Diome's Préférence Nationale is a powerful and deeply personal narrative that exposes the everyday racism, prejudice, and structural discrimination faced by immigrants in France. The narrator, a Senegalese woman living in Strasbourg, describes how the French system creates barriers for foreigners, especially through laws that quietly delay or deny citizenship. She sarcastically remarks that even her Senegalese cat has official papers, while she, a human being, is denied recognition. Her sharp humour highlights how laws, though created by governments, are enforced and strengthened by ordinary people who apply them rigidly in daily life.

In her search for work, the narrator responds to a newspaper advertisement from a city-center bakery seeking a salesgirl. Despite her qualifications, her French friend discourages her, failing to understand the challenges immigrants face. Determined to survive, the narrator visits the bakery, only to encounter racial prejudice face to face. The bakery owner, a man with a German moustache and a hat in French colours, dismisses her the moment he sees her skin. He insists she speak the local Alsatian dialect, knowing she cannot, and finally humiliates her by suggesting she should "work in her own country." His refusal reveals how préférence nationale, the idea of privileging French natives over foreigners, operates not just in law but in people's attitudes.

Still unemployed, the narrator later applies for another job as a French tutor. When she meets the woman, a supermarket cashier, she is once again rejected purely because she is not 'European-type.' Despite having a degree and more competence than the woman judging her, she is dismissed due to her race. The narrator responds with dignity and sharp wit, exposing the hypocrisy of someone who looks down on her while lacking the education she possesses. The woman's final racist insult only reinforces the cruelty the narrator faces, but she remains emotionally strong, remarking that unlike those who turn red with anger or shame, her skin "always keeps its dignity." Through these incidents, Diome portrays the harsh realities of immigrants who struggle not because of a lack of qualifications, but because of systemic racism and social prejudice. Despite this, the narrator's voice remains strong, intelligent, and courageous as she challenges injustice with satire, truth, and a refusal to lose her self-respect. Ultimately, the story reveals that identity is not granted by society's approval but shaped by one's inner strength, dignity, and resilience.

1. Read the excerpt taken from Préférence Nationale and answer the questions that follow.

The law changed very quietly, thanks to Mr Borders: if you're married to a French citizen, it will now take two years for you to claim the benefits of citizenship. By this delay, Mr Borders is relying on the nature of his countrymen to break up the relationship. Then, as the ex-wife of a Frenchman, the foreign woman becomes no more than an ex-object. And as with any object, she has no rights, not even the right to earn an honest living. They won't give me citizenship, but my Senegalese cat has his papers. Perhaps it's because he's ginger.

Laws only gather pace when ordinary people start applying them. Termites can cause the collapse of \African mahogany trees, and the size of an anthill depends on the number of worker ants. It is thus the small employers who make the policy of preference nationale effective.

I was looking for a job in one of the free papers and came across this ad: Large bakery in the city centre looking for salesgirl. Dialect desirable. Please come to the shop.

1. What change in the law is mentioned in the passage?
   A) Foreigners cannot marry French citizens
   B) Citizenship can be claimed immediately after marriage
   C) A foreign spouse must wait two years to claim citizenship
   D) Citizenship is granted only to skilled workers

2. What comparison does the writer make to explain how laws become effective?
   A) Laws and machines
   B) Laws and elections
   C) Laws and natural processes like termites and ants
   D) Laws and written documents

3. Which statements highlight the writer’s criticism of the law and society?
   A) The law relies on relationships breaking up
   B) Ordinary people help enforce discriminatory policies
   C) Foreigners are treated with dignity
   D) Even animals seem to have more rights than people

Choose the right option
   i) A, B and D
   ii) A and C
   iii) B, C and D
   iv) All the above

4. Why does the writer mention her Senegalese cat having citizenship papers?
5. Identify the Noun Phrase and Verb Phrase from the sentence below.
   My Senegalese cat has his papers.

2. Read the excerpt taken from Préférence Nationale and answer the questions that follow.

When I arrived at the cafe it was packed, but Madame had told me she would be wearing ‘a white jersey with blue stripes’. I spotted her immediately. I introduced myself and showed her a part of my brain that had been lying dormant in a folder: the famous degree.

Then the waiter approached in a friendly way and asked, "And for you, madame?” I ordered some kind of mocktail, thinking, that's funny - when they want to sell something, national preference is nowhere to be seen. The waiter brought my glass. The woman opposite me examined the piece of paper, then gave it back to me, saying, “I want a European-type person.” Lifting her chin in the air, she added, “I don't want anyone messing up my child's education.”

Madame is French, true, but hasn't even passed her degree and seems to think she could not tutor her daughter herself. She is refusing me work on account of my black lips which can drone the niceties of French grammar better than hers.

1. How did the narrator recognise Madame in the café?

A) By the waiter's description
B) By her voice
C) By the white jersey with blue stripes
D) By the document she was holding

2. Why does the narrator find the waiter's behaviour ironic?

A) The waiter was rude to her
B) National preference disappeared when selling something
C) The waiter refused to serve her
D) The café was overcrowded

3. Which details show Madame's prejudice and hypocrisy?

A) She demanded a "European-type person"
B) She examined the narrator's degree
C) She doubted the narrator's ability despite her qualifications
D) She admitted she could tutor her child herself

Choose the right option

i) A, B and C
ii) A and C
iii) B, C and D
iv) All the above

4. Why does the narrator feel insulted and unfairly treated by Madame?
5. Identify the Noun Phrase and Verb Phrase from the sentence below.

The woman opposite me examined the piece of paper

COMPREHENSION - POETRY

1. Read the lines from Friends ,Romans ,Countrymen ... and answer the questions that follow.

Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears;
I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him.
The evil that men do lives after them;
The good is oft interred with their bones;
So let it be with Caesar. The noble Brutus
Hath told you Caesar was ambitious:
If it were so, it was a grievous fault;
And grievously hath Caesar answered it.
Here, under leave of Brutus and the rest, -
For Brutus is an honourable man;

UNFAMILIAR PASSAGES

1. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

In recent years, community libraries have begun to reappear in towns and villages, taking on new forms and purposes. Unlike traditional libraries that focused mainly on silent reading, modern community libraries function as shared learning spaces. They offer books, newspapers, digital resources, and even workshops for people of all ages. These libraries play a crucial role in promoting reading habits, especially among children who may not have access to books at home. Community libraries also help bridge the digital divide. Many of them provide free internet access and basic computer training, enabling people to apply for jobs, access government services, and learn new skills. For elderly people, these spaces offer a sense of belonging, while young learners benefit from group activities such as storytelling sessions and reading clubs.

Beyond education, community libraries strengthen social bonds. They encourage interaction among people from different backgrounds and promote values such as cooperation and mutual respect. In a world increasingly dominated by individual screen time, these libraries remind us of the importance of shared spaces for collective growth. By nurturing curiosity and lifelong learning, community libraries quietly contribute to the intellectual and social development of society.

1. Which of the following best describes the role of modern community libraries?
   A. Places meant only for storing old books
   B. Silent spaces restricted to individual reading
   C. Shared learning spaces that support education and social interaction
   D. Centres used only by students preparing for examinations
2. Which of the following benefits of community libraries are mentioned in the passage?
   A. Providing free internet access
   B. Offering workshops and group activities
   C. Supplying financial aid to villagers
   D. Helping people access government services

Choose the correct option from the following:

i) B and C only ii) A and C only
iii) A, B, and D iv) A, B, C, and D

3. How do community libraries help bridge the digital divide?
4. According to the passage, how do community libraries strengthen social bonds?

2. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

Water is one of the most valuable natural resources on Earth, yet it is often taken for granted. Although nearly three-fourths of the planet is covered with water, only a small percentage of it is fresh and suitable for human use. Rapid population growth, urbanisation, and careless consumption have increased the pressure on available water resources. As a result, many regions experience water scarcity, especially during summer months. Rainwater harvesting has emerged as a practical solution to this problem. It involves collecting and storing rainwater for future use instead of allowing it to flow away as runoff. This method not only helps conserve water but also reduces flooding and soil erosion. In rural areas, harvested rainwater supports agriculture, while in cities it can be used for household purposes such as washing and gardening.

Apart from conserving water, rainwater harvesting promotes environmental sustainability. It recharges groundwater levels and lessens dependence on rivers and reservoirs. By adopting simple water conservation practices at home and in public spaces, individuals can play a significant role in ensuring water security. Small efforts, when multiplied across communities, can lead to meaningful and long-lasting change.

1. What is the main idea of the passage?
   A. Water covers most of the Earth's surface
   B. Water scarcity is caused only by climate change
   C. Rainwater harvesting is an effective solution to water scarcity
   D. Rivers and reservoirs are the only sources of water
2. Which of the following advantages of rainwater harvesting are mentioned in the passage?
   A. Helps reduce flooding
   B. Supports agricultural activities
   C. Produces drinking water without treatment
   D. Recharges groundwater levels

Choose the correct option from the following:
   i) A and C only
   ii) A, B, and D
   iii) B and C only
   iv) A, B, C, and D

3. Why does water scarcity occur according to the passage?
4. How can individuals contribute to water security as suggested in the passage?

3. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

In the modern world, success is often measured by speed—how quickly goals are achieved and how fast results are produced. This obsession with immediacy has gradually altered the way people work, learn, and even think. While technological advancements have undoubtedly increased efficiency, they have also reduced the patience required for deep understanding and careful reflection. Many people now prefer quick answers over thoughtful inquiry. Slow thinking, however, plays a vital role in meaningful learning and sound decision-making. It allows individuals to analyse information, question assumptions, and evaluate consequences before acting. In fields such as science, medicine, and governance, rushed judgments can lead to serious errors. Even in everyday life, impulsive decisions often result in regret, whereas deliberate choices tend to be wiser and more sustainable.

Moreover, slow thinking encourages creativity and emotional intelligence. When the mind is given time to wander and reflect, it can connect ideas in unexpected ways. This process nurtures innovation and empathy—qualities that cannot be developed through haste. In a society driven by constant urgency, rediscovering the value of slowing down may help individuals achieve not only better outcomes but also a deeper sense of fulfilment and balance.

1. What is the passage mainly concerned with?
   A. The disadvantages of technological advancement
   B. The importance of speed in modern education
   C. The value of slow thinking in learning and decision-making
   D. The role of creativity in professional success
2. Which of the following ideas are supported by the passage?
   A. Rushed decisions can lead to serious mistakes
   B. Slow thinking helps develop creativity and empathy

C. Speed always guarantees better results

D. Thoughtful reflection improves decision-making

Choose the correct option from the following:

i) A, B, C, and D ii) A and C only

iii) B and C only iv) A, B, and D

3. How has the obsession with speed affected the way people think, according to the passage?

4. Why does the author suggest that slowing down can lead to a more balanced life?

4. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

Artificial Intelligence, commonly known as AI, refers to machines that are programmed to think and learn like humans. Today, AI is a part of our daily lives, even if we do not always realise it. Voice assistants on mobile phones, recommendation systems on shopping websites, and navigation apps that suggest the fastest routes all use AI technology.

AI helps make tasks easier and saves time. In hospitals, AI is used to analyse medical reports and assist doctors in diagnosing diseases more accurately. In education, AI-powered tools help students learn at their own pace by providing personalised feedback. Farmers also use AI-based systems to predict weather conditions and improve crop production. However, AI should be used responsibly. Over-dependence on machines may reduce human skills and creativity. Therefore, it is important to balance technological progress with human judgment. When used wisely, Artificial Intelligence can improve efficiency and contribute positively to society.

1. What does Artificial Intelligence refer to?

2. Which of the following is an example of AI mentioned in the passage?

A. Printed textbooks B. Voice assistants

C. Handwritten letters D. Typewriters

3. Which benefits of AI are mentioned in the passage?

A. Helps doctors diagnose diseases B. Improves farming practices

C. Completely replaces human creativity D. Saves time

Choose the correct option from the following:

i) A, B, and D ii) A and C only

iii) B and C only iv) A, B, C, and D

4. Why should AI be used responsibly?

5. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

Trees are one of the most valuable resources on Earth. They provide oxygen, improve air quality, and support life in many ways. Trees help control climate by absorbing carbon dioxide and reducing the effects of global warming. They also prevent soil erosion by holding the soil together with their roots. Trees play a vital role in maintaining biodiversity. Many birds, animals, and insects depend on trees for food and shelter. In addition, trees provide humans with fruits, medicines, wood, and shade. Green spaces created by trees improve mental health and make living environments more pleasant. Unfortunately, large numbers of trees are being cut down for construction and industrial purposes. This leads to environmental imbalance and climate problems. Protecting trees and planting new ones is a shared responsibility. By conserving forests and promoting afforestation, people can help protect the environment for future generations.

1. What is the main idea of the passage?
   A. Trees are used only for wood
   B. Trees are important for the environment and life
   C. Trees cause climate problems
   D. Trees grow only in forests
2. Which of the following functions of trees are mentioned?
   A. Prevent soil erosion
   B. Improve air quality
   C. Increase pollution
   D. Support wildlife

Choose the correct option from the following:
   i) A, B, C, and D
   ii) A and C only
   iii) B and C only
   iv) A, B, and D

3. How do trees help in controlling climate?
4. What responsibility do humans have towards trees according to the passage?

6. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

Volunteerism refers to the act of offering one's time and skills to help others without expecting payment. Volunteers play an important role in supporting communities, especially during times of crisis such as natural disasters or public health emergencies. Their efforts help reduce the burden on government and social organisations.

Volunteering also benefits the volunteers themselves. It helps them develop skills such as leadership, teamwork, and communication. Young people who engage in volunteer work gain confidence and a sense of responsibility towards society. Moreover, volunteering promotes empathy by allowing individuals to understand the difficulties faced by others.

In a world where people are often focused on personal success, volunteerism encourages social responsibility and cooperation. Even small acts of service can create positive change. By volunteering time and effort, individuals contribute to building a more caring and inclusive society.

1. What does the term 'volunteerism' mean?
2. Which of the following best describes the role of volunteers?
   A. They work only for personal benefit
   B. They replace government officials
   C. They support communities during difficult times
   D. They work only for payment
3. Which benefits of volunteering are mentioned in the passage?
   A. Develops leadership skills
   B. Promotes empathy
   C. Guarantees financial success
   D. Encourages social responsibility

Choose the correct option from the following:
   i) A and C only
   ii) A, B, and D
   iii) B and C only
   iv) A, B, C, and D

4. How does volunteerism help build a better society?

7. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

The Lost Wallet

Ravi was returning home from school when he noticed a wallet lying near the bus stop. He picked it up and looked around, but there was no one nearby. Inside the wallet were some currency notes, an identity card, and a few receipts. Ravi felt confused for a moment. His family was going through financial difficulties, and the money could help them.

However, Ravi remembered his father's words that honesty was more valuable than money. He decided to return the wallet. Using the address on the identity card, he walked to a nearby house and rang the bell. An elderly man opened the door. When Ravi handed over the wallet, the man's face lit up with relief. He explained that the money was meant for his medical expenses.

The man thanked Ravi and offered him a reward, but Ravi politely refused. As he walked back home, Ravi felt a deep sense of happiness. Though he had returned home empty-handed, his heart was full of pride.

The Silent Apology

Anjali had always been proud of her handwriting. One afternoon, she noticed that her classmate Meera was struggling to complete her notes. Without thinking much, Anjali remarked loudly that neat writing came only with practice and talent. Meera remained silent, but her eyes filled with tears. Later that day, Anjali learned that Meera had injured her hand in an accident and was finding it painful to write. Anjali felt ashamed of her words. She realised that she had judged Meera without knowing her situation.

The next day, Anjali placed a neatly written set of notes on Meera's desk with a small message: "I'm sorry. I didn't understand." Meera looked up, smiled gently, and nodded. No words were exchanged, but the silence spoke louder than any apology. From that day on, Anjali learned to pause before judging others, understanding that kindness often begins with empathy.

1. What mistake did Anjali make?

2. What does the "silent apology" refer to?

A. Anjali's public comment B. The written note and help
C. Meera's silence D. The teacher's advice

3. Which themes are highlighted in the story?

A. Importance of empathy
B. Dangers of quick judgment

i) A, B, C, and D
ii) A and C only
iii) B and C only
iv) A, B, and D

4. What lesson did Anjali learn by the end of the story?

9. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

Plastic waste has become a major environmental concern across the world. Single-use plastics such as bags, bottles, and packaging materials are used for a short time but remain in the environment for years. These plastics pollute soil and water and pose a serious threat to animals, especially marine life. Reducing plastic waste begins with small changes in daily habits. Carrying cloth bags, using refillable bottles, and avoiding plastic straws can make a significant difference. Recycling plastic waste properly also helps reduce pollution and conserve resources. Governments and organisations have introduced rules to limit plastic use, but public participation is equally important. When individuals become responsible consumers, environmental protection becomes a shared effort. By choosing sustainable alternatives, people can contribute to a cleaner and healthier planet.

1. What problem does the passage mainly discuss?

2. Which actions help reduce plastic waste?

A. Using cloth bags
B. Avoiding plastic straws
C. Burning plastic waste
D. Recycling plastics

Choose the correct option from the following:

i) A, C, and D
ii) A and C only
iii) B and C only
iv) A, B, C, and D

3. Why is plastic waste harmful to animals?

4. How can individuals help protect the environment?

10. Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

Learning from Failure

Failure is often seen as something negative, but it can be one of the greatest teachers in life. Many successful people have faced repeated failures before achieving their goals. Failure helps individuals understand their mistakes and encourages them to improve. Students, in particular, can learn valuable lessons from failure. Poor exam results may highlight weak areas that need more attention. Instead of losing confidence, learners can use failure as an opportunity to develop better study habits and discipline. Failure also builds resilience. When people learn to accept setbacks calmly, they become stronger and more determined. With the right attitude, failure can lead to personal growth and long-term success.

1. What is the author’s view about failure?

2. Which benefits of failure are mentioned in the passage?

A. Helps identify mistakes
B. Builds resilience
C. Guarantees success
D. Encourages improvement

Choose the correct option from the following:

i) A, B, and D ii) A and C only

iii) B and C only iv) A, B, C, and D

3. How can students use failure positively?

4. What attitude towards failure does the passage suggest?

DISCOURSES

WRITE-UP

1. The story A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings shows how human beings often react negatively to the miraculous. Prepare a write-up discussing how fear, curiosity, and selfishness influence the villagers' behaviour towards the old man.

[Hints: fear of the unknown – villagers' curiosity – greed and exploitation – mockery and imprisonment – lack of compassion – symbolic meaning of wings – human response to miracles]

In A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings, Gabriel García Márquez presents a disturbing picture of human behaviour when people encounter the miraculous. Instead of compassion and understanding, the villagers respond with fear, curiosity, and selfishness.

The appearance of the old man frightens the villagers because they cannot understand the unknown. Their fear soon turns into curiosity, and people gather to see him as a strange object. Pelayo and Elisenda exploit this curiosity by charging money, reducing a miracle to a source of profit. The old man is mocked, imprisoned in a chicken coop, and treated without dignity.

Even religious authority fails to show empathy. Through the silent suffering of the old man, the author exposes human cruelty and lack of compassion. The wings, instead of being a blessing, become a burden due to human selfishness.

2. Prepare a write-up on the theme "Human Response to the Miraculous" based on the story A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings.

[Hints: arrival of the old man – fear and confusion – curiosity of villagers – exploitation and greed – mockery and cruelty – lack of compassion – symbolic meaning – message on humanity]

A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings presents how humans often fail to respond compassionately to miracles. The arrival of the old man creates fear and confusion among the villagers instead of empathy.

People treat him as an object of curiosity and profit. Pelayo and Elisenda exploit him, while others mock and imprison him. Even religion fails to recognise his humanity.

Through this behaviour, the writer exposes human selfishness and suspicion. The story reminds us that true miracles lie in kindness and understanding, not in spectacle.

3. In the Attic highlights the power of hope and inner strength during times of extreme suffering. Prepare a paragraph explaining how music and memories helped the narrator survive the horrors of war.

[Hints: war and destruction – isolation and fear – hiding in the attic – music as emotional support – memories of normal life – mental strength – survival beyond physical needs]

In In the Attic, Władysław Szpilman shows that survival during war depends not only on physical strength but also on inner resilience. Living in fear and isolation, the narrator finds comfort in music and memories. Music becomes a source of emotional support and helps him retain his identity as an artist. Memories of his earlier life give him hope and prevent him from losing his humanity. Even in extreme loneliness, these memories provide strength to endure suffering. Thus, music and memories help the narrator survive mentally and emotionally, proving that hope can exist even in the darkest moments.

4. The lesson Breaking Barriers, I Will Fly presents the triumph of determination over social and institutional barriers. Prepare a write-up describing how perseverance helped Srikanth achieve success despite challenges.

[Hints: visual impairment – denial of science education – social prejudice – legal struggle – family support – confidence and determination – breaking stereotypes – message of hope]

Breaking Barriers, I Will Fly portrays the inspiring journey of Srikanth Bolla, who overcame severe challenges through determination. Despite being visually impaired, Srikanth excelled in his studies but was denied the chance to study science due to rigid rules and prejudice.

Instead of giving up, he fought legally for his right to education. With the support of his family and strong self-belief, he challenged the system and proved his capability. His perseverance helped him break social barriers and achieve success.

The lesson conveys a powerful message that determination and confidence can overcome even the strongest obstacles.

5. A Phoenix Rises shows how failure can become the foundation for success. Prepare a write-up explaining how the life of Arunachalam Muruganantham reflects resilience and innovation.
[Hints: social stigma – repeated failures – ridicule and isolation – scientific curiosity – determination to solve a problem – innovation and success – rising after setbacks – symbolism of phoenix]

A Phoenix Rises presents the inspiring story of Arunachalam Muruganantham, whose life proves that failure can lead to success. His efforts to create low-cost sanitary napkins were met with ridicule, rejection, and isolation from society.

Despite repeated failures, he remained determined and focused on solving a real social problem. His scientific curiosity and resilience helped him innovate and succeed. Like a phoenix rising from ashes, Muruganantham transformed setbacks into achievements.

The lesson highlights the importance of perseverance, innovation, and courage in overcoming social resistance.

6. The short story War presents the emotional suffering caused by armed conflict. Prepare a paragraph explaining how the story reveals the pain and helplessness of ordinary people affected by war.

[Hints: train journey – parents of soldiers – grief and anxiety – false courage – mother's silent suffering – final question – irony of war – human cost of conflict]

In War, Luigi Pirandello reveals the deep emotional suffering caused by armed conflict. The story is set during a train journey where parents speak about their sons fighting in the war. Though they try to appear brave, their words hide fear and pain. The grieving mother silently carries her sorrow, and her final question exposes the helplessness of parents who may lose their children. The story highlights the irony of war, where ordinary people bear the greatest suffering. Through simple conversations, the author powerfully presents the human cost of war.

7. The story A Piece of String shows how suspicion and public opinion can destroy an innocent person's life. Prepare a write-up explaining how misunderstanding and gossip lead to injustice in the story.

[Hints: simple incident – picking up the string – Malandain's accusation – villagers' suspicion – Hauchecorne's repeated explanations – loss of dignity – power of gossip – cruelty of public opinion]

In A Piece of String, Guy de Maupassant exposes the cruelty of public opinion and the danger of misunderstanding. Hauchecorne's life changes when he picks up a small piece of string from the road.

Malandain falsely accuses him of stealing a wallet, and the villagers quickly believe the accusation. Even though Hauchecorne repeatedly tries to prove his innocence, no one trusts him. His constant explanations only deepen the suspicion.

The gossip and judgement of society destroy Hauchecorne's peace and dignity. The story clearly shows how public opinion, once formed, can become more powerful than truth and justice.

8. In Trills and Thrills: Birdwatching in India, Salim Ali shows how passion and curiosity can shape a meaningful life. Prepare a paragraph explaining how his love for birds influenced his career and personality.

[Hints: childhood curiosity – first birdwatching experiences – guidance from experts – scientific approach – patience and observation – lifelong dedication – contribution to ornithology – inspiration to readers]

In Trills and Thrills: Birdwatching in India, Salim Ali describes how his passion for birds shaped his life. His curiosity about birds began in childhood and gradually developed into a serious interest. Through careful observation and guidance from experts, he adopted a scientific approach to birdwatching. His patience and dedication helped him become a renowned ornithologist. Birdwatching was not just a hobby but a lifelong commitment. The lesson inspires readers to pursue their passions with sincerity and curiosity, showing how interest can grow into a meaningful career.

9. Préférence Nationale exposes the realities of racism and discrimination faced by immigrants. Prepare a paragraph explaining how personal experiences are used to highlight prejudice and the need for human dignity.

[Hints: immigrant experience – racial discrimination – everyday humiliation – inequality and exclusion – silent suffering – demand for dignity – criticism of racist attitudes – message of equality]

In Préférence Nationale, Fatou Diome uses personal experiences to reveal the harsh reality of racism and discrimination. As an immigrant, the narrator faces inequality and exclusion in everyday life. Simple interactions expose deep-rooted prejudice and unfair treatment. These experiences highlight the silent suffering of immigrants who are denied respect and dignity. Through honest narration, the author criticises racist attitudes in society. The lesson strongly argues for equality, human dignity, and mutual respect beyond race or nationality.

10. Prepare a write-up on the topic "Rising Above Social Ridicule" based on A Phoenix Rises.

[Hints: social taboo – mockery and isolation – personal sacrifice – scientific curiosity – perseverance – social impact – symbolic title]

A Phoenix Rises presents the inspiring journey of Arunachalam Muruganantham, who rises above social ridicule to bring about meaningful change. When he begins working on menstrual hygiene, society treats the issue as a taboo. His curiosity and experiments invite mockery, suspicion, and isolation, even from his own family. He faces personal sacrifice and emotional suffering, but his commitment to improving women's lives never weakens.

Guided by scientific curiosity and perseverance, he develops a low-cost sanitary napkin machine that empowers rural women. The title symbolically reflects his journey—like a phoenix, he emerges stronger from humiliation and hardship. The story highlights how courage, patience, and innovation can challenge social prejudice and create lasting social impact.

11. Prepare a write-up on the theme "The Hidden Suffering of War" based on the story War.

[Hints: train journey – parents of soldiers – false pride – suppressed fear – grieving mother – irony – emotional impact – anti-war message]

The short story War powerfully presents the theme of the hidden suffering caused by war. Set during a train journey, the story brings together parents whose sons are fighting at the front. Outwardly, they speak with false pride about their children's bravery, trying to suppress their fear and anxiety. However, beneath their words lies deep emotional pain and uncertainty. The grieving mother, who has already lost her son, represents the true face of war's suffering. Her final question to the fellow traveller exposes the painful irony of glorifying war while silently fearing loss. Through this emotional moment, Pirandello delivers a strong anti-war message, showing that war destroys not only lives but also the emotional peace of families.

12. Prepare a write-up on the theme "Prejudice and Human Dignity" based on Préférence Nationale.

[Hints: racial discrimination – immigrant experience – daily humiliation – assertion of identity – resistance – universal relevance]

Préférence Nationale explores the theme of prejudice and human dignity through the author's immigrant experience. Fatou Diome exposes racial discrimination faced by immigrants in their daily lives, where subtle and open acts of racism lead to repeated humiliation. Ordinary situations become reminders of exclusion and inequality. However, instead of surrendering to discrimination, the author strongly asserts her identity and self-respect. Her resistance to prejudice highlights the importance of dignity and self-worth. The essay goes beyond personal suffering and carries universal relevance, urging society to reject discrimination and treat all individuals with equality and humanity. Through honest narration, the writer reminds readers that human dignity must never be compromised, regardless of race, origin, or nationality.

CHARACTER SKETCH

1. Prepare a character sketch of the old man in A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings. Highlight his appearance, behaviour, and symbolic significance in the story.

[Hints: physical appearance – wings and weakness – silence and patience – suffering and neglect – public humiliation – mysterious nature – symbolic figure – contrast with human cruelty]

The old man in A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings is portrayed as a weak, silent, and mysterious figure. He appears old, shabby, and helpless, with large wings that attract fear and curiosity rather than respect. He rarely speaks and patiently endures humiliation, confinement, and neglect. Despite being treated cruelly, he does not show anger or resistance. His silence adds to the mystery surrounding his identity. Symbolically, the old man represents the miraculous misunderstood by humanity. Through his suffering, the author exposes human cruelty, selfishness, and lack of compassion.

2. Prepare a character sketch of Władysław Szpilman, highlighting his emotional strength and resilience during the war.

[Hints: war victim – fear and isolation – hiding in the attic – love for music – inner strength – hope and determination – survival instinct – dignity as an artist]

Władysław Szpilman is portrayed as a sensitive yet resilient survivor of war. Forced into hiding, he lives in constant fear, isolation, and uncertainty. Despite physical weakness and hunger, his love for music gives him emotional strength. Music helps him preserve his identity and dignity as an artist. He remains hopeful and determined even in the darkest moments. Szpilman's character reflects courage, mental strength, and the human will to survive against overwhelming odds.

3. Prepare a character sketch of Srikanth Bolla, bringing out his determination and confidence in overcoming social barriers.

[Hints: visual impairment – academic excellence – denial of opportunities – confidence and courage – legal struggle – family support – breaking stereotypes – inspirational personality]

Srikanth Bolla is a determined and confident individual who refuses to be limited by his visual impairment. Despite excelling academically, he faces discrimination and denial of opportunities. Instead of surrendering, he challenges the system through legal means. His courage, confidence, and strong self-belief help him break social and institutional barriers. Srikanth's character inspires readers to believe in themselves and fight injustice with determination.

4. Prepare a character sketch of Arunachalam Muruganantham, focusing on his resilience and innovative spirit.

[Hints: social reformer – curiosity and courage – repeated failures – ridicule and isolation – persistence – scientific innovation – social impact – symbol of resilience]

Arunachalam Muruganantham is portrayed as a courageous and innovative thinker. His desire to solve a social problem leads him to face ridicule and isolation. Despite repeated failures, he remains persistent and focused. His scientific curiosity and determination help him succeed in developing affordable sanitary napkins. Muruganantham's character symbolises resilience, innovation, and the courage to challenge social taboos.

5. Prepare a character sketch of the grieving mother in War. Describe her emotions and explain how her silence reveals deep sorrow.

[Hints: mother of a soldier – quiet appearance – suppressed grief – listening to others – emotional restraint – final question – intense sorrow – symbol of parental suffering]

The grieving mother in War is a deeply sorrowful yet restrained character. She travels with other parents whose sons are fighting in the war. Unlike others who speak bravely, she remains silent, listening quietly. Her silence reflects intense emotional pain and helplessness. The final question she asks exposes her deep fear and sorrow. She symbolises the suffering of parents who silently bear the emotional cost of war.

6. Prepare a character sketch of Hauchecorne, highlighting his innocence and the injustice he suffers.

[Hints: simple villager – honest nature – minor incident – false accusation – humiliation – obsession with proving innocence – emotional breakdown – tragic figure]

Hauchecorne is a simple, honest villager whose life is ruined by suspicion. His innocent act of picking up a piece of string leads to a false accusation. Though innocent, he is humiliated and distrusted by society. His repeated attempts to prove the truth only increase suspicion. This obsession finally breaks him emotionally. Hauchecorne represents the tragic victim of injustice and cruel public opinion.

7. Prepare a character sketch of Salim Ali, focusing on his passion for nature and dedication to birdwatching.

[Hints: curious child – love for birds – patience and observation – scientific approach – lifelong dedication – humility – contribution to science – inspirational figure]

Salim Ali is portrayed as a passionate and dedicated naturalist. His curiosity about birds begins in childhood and grows into a lifelong commitment. He observes birds patiently and scientifically, showing discipline and humility. His dedication contributes significantly to ornithology in India. Salim Ali inspires readers to pursue their passions with sincerity and respect for nature.

8. Prepare a character sketch of the narrator in Préférence Nationale, focusing on her experiences of discrimination and resilience.

[Hints: immigrant identity – experiences of racism – everyday humiliation – silent suffering – courage to speak out – demand for dignity – strong voice – resilience]

The narrator in Préférence Nationale is a strong and sensitive immigrant woman. She faces racism and discrimination in everyday life. Despite humiliation and exclusion, she speaks honestly about her experiences. Her voice reflects courage and a demand for human dignity. Through resilience and self-respect, she challenges racist attitudes and asserts equality.

DIARY

1. Imagine that the old man writes a diary entry on the night after being locked in the chicken coop. Write the diary entry expressing his suffering and silent endurance.

29 March 2026
Monday 9 pm

The night is cold, and the ground beneath me is hard. My wings ache, yet no one understands my pain. They stare at me with fear and curiosity, as if I am not human.

I remain silent, for words seem useless here. Their laughter and cruelty hurt more than the cage. Still, I endure. Somewhere deep within, I feel a quiet strength urging me to survive.

I long for freedom, not from the cage alone, but from the cruelty of hearts. Until then, I will wait in silence.

2. Imagine that Szpilman writes a diary entry after spending a day hiding alone in the attic during the war. Write the diary entry.

23 May 2025
Monday 9 pm

Another day passes in silence and fear. Every sound makes my heart race, afraid that I may be discovered. Hunger weakens my body, but my mind clings to hope.

Music lives within me, even when my fingers cannot touch the keys. Memories of my family and past life give me strength. I refuse to let fear destroy my spirit.

As long as I can remember music, I know I am alive. Tomorrow, I will endure again.

3. Imagine that Srikanth writes a diary entry on the day he is denied permission to study science. Write the diary entry expressing his feelings and determination.

22 June 2026
Monday 9 pm

Today’s decision has shaken me deeply. Despite my hard work, I was denied the chance to study science. It hurts to be judged by disability rather than ability.

For a moment, disappointment tried to defeat me. But I will not surrender. I know my worth and my potential. If doors are closed, I will find another way.

This is not the end. I will fight for my right to learn and succeed.

4. Imagine that Muruganantham writes a diary entry during the period when he was mocked and isolated for his experiments. Write the diary entry.

13 January 2026

Monday 9 pm

Today was another day of mockery and loneliness. People avoid me, whispering behind my back. At times, the pain feels unbearable.

Yet, I know my purpose is greater than their laughter. My experiments may fail, but my determination remains strong. I believe in what I am trying to achieve.

Someday, this suffering will make sense. Until then, I will continue.

5. Imagine that the grieving mother writes a diary entry after the train journey to meet her son. Write the diary entry expressing her inner conflict.

15 January 2026
Monday 9 pm
Everyone speaks of bravery and pride, but my heart trembles. I smile, yet fear grips me tightly. A mother's love cannot silence the dread of loss.

I pray silently, afraid even to voice my fears. What if I never see my son again? The thought crushes me.
I carry my sorrow quietly, for words cannot express this pain.

6. Imagine that Hauchecorne writes a diary entry on the night after being publicly accused. Write the diary entry expressing his humiliation and helplessness.

05 January 2026
Monday 9 pm

I am innocent, yet no one believes me. A piece of string has stolen my peace and honour. Every face I see reflects suspicion.

The more I explain, the worse it becomes. My words sound empty even to me now. I feel trapped and helpless.

How cruel society can be when truth is ignored. I fear this pain will never leave me.

7. Imagine that Salim Ali writes a diary entry after his first serious birdwatching experience. Write the diary entry expressing his excitement and curiosity.

11 January 2026
Monday 9 pm

Today I watched birds more closely than ever before. Their movements and calls filled me with wonder. I felt a strange excitement within me.

Every detail fascinated me. I wanted to know more, to understand their world. This experience has awakened a deep curiosity.

I feel this is only the beginning of a lifelong journey.

8. Imagine that the narrator writes a diary entry after facing racial discrimination. Write the diary entry expressing pain and self-respect.

03 January 2026
Monday 9 pm

Today's encounter left me wounded. A simple moment revealed deep prejudice. It hurts to be judged by colour and origin.

Yet, I refuse to lose my dignity. My identity is not defined by their ignorance. I will continue to speak, to resist, and to demand respect.

Silence may protect me, but truth will free me.

LETTER WRITING

1. Władysław Szpilman writes a letter to a close friend describing how music helped him survive the darkest days of war. Write the letter.

Peters House No.11
Warsaw
12 March 19—
Dear Friend,

I write to you from a place of silence and fear. The war has taken away my family, my home, and even my freedom. Each day feels like a battle for survival.

In this darkness, music has become my greatest strength. Though I cannot touch the piano, melodies live within me. They remind me that I am still human.

Music keeps my hope alive. I believe it has saved my spirit when everything else failed.

Yours lovingly,

Szpilman

2. Srikanth writes a letter to the Education Minister complaining about the injustice he faced when he was denied permission to study science. Write the letter.

From
Srikanth Bolla
Hyderabad
11.11.1991
To
The Education Minister
Government of India
Subject : Denied permission to study science due to visual impairment

Sir,

I wish to bring to your attention the injustice I faced despite securing excellent marks in the board examinations. I was denied admission to study science solely because of my visual impairment.

This decision reflects discrimination rather than merit. I firmly believe that disability should not become a barrier to education. I request you to reconsider such policies and uphold the right to equal opportunities.

I remain determined to pursue my dreams and contribute meaningfully to society.

Yours faithfully,

Srikanth Bolla

3. Muruganantham writes a letter to a social organisation explaining the purpose of his invention and seeking support. Write the letter.

From

A. Muruganantham
Tamil Nadu

11.11.1991

To

The Secretary
Social Welfare Organisation

Subject : Information about a new low-cost sanitary napkin machine

Sir/Madam,

I am writing to inform you about a low-cost sanitary napkin machine I have developed after years of struggle and research. Rural women suffer due to lack of affordable hygiene products.

My invention aims to empower women and improve health awareness. However, I need support to expand its reach. I request your organisation’s assistance in promoting this initiative.

Together, we can bring meaningful change.

Yours sincerely,

Muruganantham

4. The grieving mother writes a letter to her son serving in the army, expressing her suppressed fear and unconditional love. Write the letter.

My Dear Son,

I received your letter and was relieved to know you are safe. As a mother, my heart is filled with both pride and fear. I try to remain strong, but worry never leaves me.

I pray every day for your safety and quick return. Remember that my love surrounds you wherever you are.

Take care, my child. I await the day I can hold you again.

With love,

Mother

Goderwille, France

11.11.1888

To

The Mayor

Goderville

Subject : Regarding the lost wallet incident

Sir,

I write this letter to assert my innocence regarding the lost wallet incident. I picked up nothing but a piece of string, yet I have been treated like a criminal.

Public suspicion has destroyed my peace and reputation. I request a fair enquiry so that the truth may be known.

I hope justice will prevail.

Yours sincerely,

Hauchecorne

6. The narrator writes a letter to a newspaper editor expressing concern over the destruction of trees and environmental imbalance. Write the letter.

From

A Concerned Citizen

To

The Editor

A National Daily

Sir,

Through your esteemed newspaper, I wish to draw attention to the ruthless cutting down of trees. Trees are living beings that sustain life and balance nature.

Human greed has caused irreversible damage to the environment. I urge authorities and citizens to act responsibly and protect our natural heritage.

Let us preserve nature before it is too late.

Yours truly,

A Nature Lover

7. The narrator in Préférence Nationale writes a letter to a friend describing her experience of racial discrimination and her resolve to fight prejudice. Write the letter.

Dear Friend,

I wish to share an experience that left me deeply hurt. Once again, I faced discrimination simply because of my origin. Such moments question one's dignity.

Yet, I refuse to be silent. My identity is my strength, not a weakness. I will continue to speak against prejudice and stand for equality.

Your support means a lot to me.

With affection,

REVIEW

1. Prepare a short review of the story A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings, focusing on its theme, characters, and message.

Hints: strange arrival – villagers' reaction – exploitation and cruelty – role of Pelayo and Elisenda – magical realism – irony – human response to miracles – message on compassion

A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings by Gabriel Garcia Márquez is a powerful short story that blends reality with fantasy through magical realism. The story revolves around an old man with wings whose arrival creates confusion and curiosity among villagers.

Instead of compassion, the villagers respond with fear, mockery, and greed. Pelayo and Elisenda exploit the old man for money, treating him like an object rather than a human being. The angel's silent endurance highlights human cruelty and selfishness.

Through irony and symbolism, the writer exposes society's inability to accept the extraordinary with kindness. The story strongly criticises human nature and reminds readers of the need for empathy and understanding.

2. Prepare a review of the autobiographical account In the Attic, highlighting its theme and emotional impact.

[Hints: Holocaust background – isolation and fear – struggle for survival – importance of music – emotional strength – human resilience – message of hope]

In the Attic is a moving autobiographical account by Władysław Szpilman that portrays the horrors of the Holocaust and the intense struggle for survival. Set against the background of war, the narrative describes the author's life in isolation, marked by constant fear, hunger, and loneliness.

Music plays a vital role in sustaining his emotional strength, helping him preserve his identity and humanity. The simple yet powerful narration creates a deep emotional impact on the reader. The work highlights human resilience and conveys a strong message of hope, showing that inner strength can help one survive even the darkest moments of life.

3. Prepare a review of the speech Breaking Barriers, I Will Fly, focusing on its theme and inspirational value.

[Hints: visual impairment – educational discrimination – determination – legal struggle – achievement against odds – motivational tone – message of equality]

Breaking Barriers, I Will Fly is an inspiring speech by Srikanth Bolla that highlights his journey against social and institutional discrimination. Despite being visually impaired, he dreams of studying science and faces unjust restrictions.

With determination and courage, he challenges these barriers and proves his ability. The speech is motivational and empowering, especially for students facing difficulties.

The message is clear: disability should never limit ambition, and perseverance can overcome any obstacle.

4. Prepare a review of the story A Phoenix Rises, highlighting the struggles and achievements of Arunachalam Muruganantham.

[Hints: menstrual hygiene issue – social taboo – personal sacrifice – mockery and isolation – innovation – empowerment of women – symbolic title]

A Phoenix Rises is an inspiring story that highlights the struggles and achievements of Arunachalam Muruganantham. The narrative focuses on his efforts to address the taboo issue of menstrual hygiene in rural India. Due to social prejudice, he faces mockery, isolation, and personal sacrifice.

However, his strong determination and scientific curiosity help him continue his work. His invention of a low-cost sanitary napkin machine empowers women by providing dignity and health awareness. The symbolic title reflects his journey of rising from humiliation and failure to success. The story celebrates courage, innovation, and a deep sense of social responsibility.

5. Prepare a review of the short story War, focusing on its portrayal of human emotions and the theme of loss.

[Hints: train journey – parents of soldiers – false bravery – grieving mother – suppressed sorrow – irony – impact of war – universal suffering]

Luigi Pirandello's War is a powerful short story that portrays the deep human emotions and sense of loss caused by war. Set during a train journey, the story brings together parents whose sons are fighting at the front. They speak with false bravery, hiding their suppressed fear and sorrow. The grieving mother, who has already lost her son, silently reveals the harsh reality of war through her final question. This moment exposes the irony behind the glorification of war. The story leaves a strong emotional impact, showing that war leads to universal suffering rather than honour or victory.

6. Prepare a short review of the story A Piece of String, focusing on its theme and moral lesson.

[Hints: Hauchecorne – picking up string – false accusation – villagers' suspicion – humiliation – obsession with innocence – cruelty of public opinion]

A Piece of String by Guy de Maupassant is a powerful short story that highlights the cruelty of suspicion and public opinion. Hauchecorne's innocent act of picking up a piece of string is misinterpreted, leading to a false accusation of theft. Though he repeatedly asserts his innocence, the villagers remain suspicious and humiliate him.

Society's refusal to believe the truth turns his life into a painful struggle. His obsession with proving his innocence gradually destroys his peace of mind. The story conveys a strong moral lesson about the dangers of prejudice and the injustice caused by blind judgement and cruel public opinion.

7. Prepare a review of the autobiographical excerpt Trills and Thrills: Birdwatching in India.

[Hints: childhood curiosity – first observation – passion for birds – scientific attitude – joy of discovery – love for nature]

Trills and Thrills: Birdwatching in India is an engaging autobiographical excerpt in which Salim Ali narrates his early experiences with birdwatching. His childhood curiosity and first careful observation of birds awaken a lifelong passion for studying them. The author's scientific attitude and patience help him understand bird behaviour in detail.

The joy of discovery is evident throughout the narrative, making the account lively and inspiring. Written in simple and clear language, the work reflects the author's deep love for nature and wildlife. It encourages readers to observe the natural world closely and develop respect and concern for the environment.

8. Prepare a review of the autobiographical essay Préférence Nationale, focusing on its theme and relevance.

[Hints: racial discrimination – immigrant experience – everyday prejudice – loss of dignity – assertion of identity – universal message]

Préférence Nationale by Fatou Diome is a powerful autobiographical essay that focuses on the theme of racial discrimination and its relevance in society. Drawing from her immigrant experience, the author exposes everyday prejudice faced by immigrants in subtle and open forms. These experiences often result in humiliation and a loss of dignity. However, Diome firmly asserts her identity and self-respect, refusing to accept discrimination. The essay carries a universal message that goes beyond personal suffering, reminding readers of the need for equality and humanity. Written in a direct and honest tone, the work urges society to reject prejudice and uphold human dignity.

SPEECH

1. Prepare a speech on the topic "Hope and Resilience in Times of Crisis" based on In the Attic.

Hints: war background – isolation and fear – physical suffering – power of music – mental strength – survival of spirit – relevance today

Respected teachers and my dear friends,

In the Attic teaches us that hope can survive even in the darkest times. Amid war, hunger, and loneliness, the narrator preserves his spirit through music.

Though physically trapped, his mind remains free. Music becomes a source of strength and identity. The story shows that resilience is not the absence of fear, but the courage to endure.

Even today, this lesson inspires us to remain hopeful in times of crisis.

Thank you.

2. Prepare a motivational speech based on Srikanth Bolla's life, highlighting the importance of determination and equal opportunity.

[Hints: visual impairment – academic excellence – denial of opportunity – legal struggle – self-belief – success against odds – message to youth]

Dear friends,

Srikanth Bolla's life teaches us that disability is not inability. Despite being visually impaired, he excelled academically but faced discrimination.

Instead of surrendering, he fought for justice and proved his worth. His journey reminds us that determination can break any barrier.

Let us believe in our abilities and demand equal opportunities for all.

Thank you.

NEWSPAPER REPORT

1. A strange winged old man was found in a coastal village, attracting large crowds and public attention. Prepare a newspaper report on the incident.

Winged Old Man Found in Coastal Village

By Staff Reporter
Coastal Village, March 12

A mysterious old man with enormous wings was found in a coastal village following a heavy storm last night. The man was discovered in the courtyard of a local resident, Pelayo.

Villagers gathered in large numbers, reacting with fear and curiosity. The old man was kept in a chicken coop as people paid money to see him. Authorities were informed but failed to identify his origin.

The incident has raised questions about human behaviour and compassion as the mystery surrounding the old man continues.

2. A Jewish pianist survived the war by hiding alone in an attic for several months. Prepare a newspaper report highlighting his survival story.

Pianist Survives War in Attic Hideout

By Special Correspondent
Warsaw, April 5

Władysław Szpilman, a renowned pianist, survived the horrors of war by hiding in an attic for several months. Living in constant fear, he endured hunger and isolation.

Music became his emotional support during this period. After liberation, Szpilman emerged as a symbol of human resilience and hope.

His story stands as a powerful reminder of survival amidst adversity.

3. A visually challenged student was denied permission to study science despite securing high marks. Prepare a newspaper report on the issue.

[Hints: visually impaired student – excellent academic performance – denial of admission – discriminatory rules – legal intervention – public response – victory for equality]

Visually Challenged Student Fights for Right to Study Science

By Education Correspondent
Hyderabad, June 10

Srikanth Bolla, a visually challenged student who scored exceptionally well in board examinations, was denied permission to study science due to outdated regulations.

The decision sparked public debate and legal action. Following intervention, authorities reconsidered the case, marking a victory for equal educational opportunities.

The incident highlights the need for inclusive policies in education.

4. A social innovator from Tamil Nadu developed a low-cost sanitary napkin machine after years of struggle. Prepare a newspaper report.

A childhood incident involving a bird sparked Salim Ali's lifelong passion for ornithology. His curiosity led him to observe and study birds scientifically.

This early interest later shaped his remarkable career as a renowned bird expert. His journey continues to inspire students and nature lovers.

PARAGRAPH

1. Write a paragraph on how human beings react to the extraordinary in A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings.

The story A Very Old Man with Enormous Wings shows that humans often react negatively to the extraordinary. Instead of compassion, the villagers respond with fear, curiosity, and cruelty. Pelayo and Elisenda exploit the old man for money, while others mock and imprison him. Even religious authority fails to understand his presence. Through this behaviour, the writer exposes human selfishness and lack of empathy, reminding readers that true humanity lies in kindness.

2. Write a paragraph on the role of music in sustaining the narrator's spirit in In the Attic.

In In the Attic, music plays a crucial role in helping the narrator survive the horrors of war. Though physically isolated and deprived of food, music keeps his spirit alive. It reminds him of his identity as a pianist and provides emotional strength. Music becomes a source of hope and resilience, helping him endure fear and loneliness during the darkest moments of his life.

3. Write a paragraph on how Srikanth Bolla challenges social and institutional barriers.

Srikanth Bolla challenges social and institutional barriers through determination and self-belief. Despite being visually impaired, he excels academically but is denied permission to study science. Instead of giving up, he fights legally against discrimination. His courage and perseverance help him overcome injustice, proving that ability matters more than disability.

4. Write a paragraph on how Arunachalam Muruganantham rises above social ridicule.

Arunachalam Muruganantham rises above social ridicule through perseverance and innovation. When he attempts to address menstrual hygiene, society misunderstands and mocks him. Despite isolation and personal loss, he continues his research. His invention of a low-cost sanitary napkin machine brings dignity and health awareness to rural women. His journey shows that courage can overcome prejudice.

5. Write a paragraph on the hidden emotional suffering caused by war as portrayed in War.

The story War reveals the hidden emotional suffering caused by war. Parents pretend to be proud of their sons serving in the army, hiding their deep fear and sorrow. The grieving mother's final question exposes the painful truth of loss. Pirandello uses irony to show that war destroys families emotionally, even before it takes lives.

6. Write a paragraph on how suspicion and public opinion destroy Hauchecorne's life in A Piece of String.

In A Piece of String, suspicion and public opinion ruin Hauchecorne's life. A harmless act leads to a false accusation of theft. Though innocent, he is repeatedly humiliated and disbelieved by society. His obsession with proving his innocence destroys his peace and health, showing the cruelty of blind judgement.

7. Write a paragraph on how curiosity leads to scientific interest in Trills and Thrills.

In Trills and Thrills, Salim Ali shows how curiosity leads to scientific interest. His careful observation of birds awakens a desire to learn more about nature. This curiosity gradually develops into a lifelong passion for birdwatching and scientific study, inspiring readers to observe the world closely.

8. Write a paragraph on how Préférence Nationale exposes everyday racism.

Préférence Nationale exposes everyday racism faced by immigrants through personal experiences. The author highlights subtle discrimination that humiliates individuals and questions their dignity. Despite this, she asserts her identity and self-respect. The essay calls for equality and respect for all human beings.

INSTRUCTIONS:

- ♦ 15 minutes is given as cool off time.
- ♦ This time is to be used for reading the question paper.
- ♦ You are not supposed to write anything during the cool off time.
- ♦ Attempt the questions according to the instructions.

Questions 1 – 5: Read the excerpt taken from Trills and Thrills: Birdwatching in India and answer the questions that follow. (5x1=5)

We reached Parambikulam just as it was getting dark. In the verandah of the forest bungalow, I found a large group of Kadar adivasis, and in their midst, a bare-footed 'topless' European male in crumpled khaki shorts.

We soon introduced ourselves. He was an Austrian anthropologist, Baron Omar Rolf. He claimed ornithology to be his second love and expressed great keenness on accompanying me the next morning. Led by a forest guard, we were stalking along a narrow animal trail through dense tall grassland above five feet high – the right kind of habitat for the Broad-tailed Grass Warbler.

Upon turning a bend in the path, the forest guard suddenly ducked, excitedly pointing in front. I just glimpsed the head of a tusker striding down the same path from the opposite direction, and turned to flee as fast as I could, motioning to Omar, who was ten yards behind me, to do likewise.

1.Who did Dr. Salim Ali meet in the forest bungalow?

2.What did the narrator do when he saw the tusker?

3.What does the narrator's and Omar's reaction to the tusker suggest about the wild?

A. The beauty of untouched wild

B. The unpredictability and danger of the wild

C. The need for exploration in the wild

D. The bond between humans and animals in the wild

4.What does the description of Baron "a bare-footed 'topless' European male in crumpled khaki shorts" tell us about his personality?

5.What does the term 'anthropologist' mean?

A. A person who studies plants and trees

B. A person who studies human societies and cultures

C. A person who protects wildlife

D. A photographer who travels to different countries

Questions 6 – 9: Read the lines from the dramatic speech Friends, Romans, Countrymen... and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

He was my friend, faithful and just to me:
But Brutus says he was ambitious;
And Brutus is an honourable man.
He hath brought many captives home to Rome,
Whose ransoms did the general coffers fill:
Did this in Caesar seem ambitious?
When that the poor have cried, Caesar hath wept:
Ambition should be made of sterner stuff:
Yet Brutus says he was ambitious;
And Brutus is an honourable man.

6. What claim does Brutus make about Caesar in the lines given above?

7. Which of the following best describes Mark Antony's tone of speech in the line "And Brutus is an honourable man"?

A. Genuine praise B. Sarcasm
C. Indifference D. Fearful obedience

8.Which of the following arguments are used by Antony to question the claim that Caesar was ambitious?

A. Caesar brought captives home to Rome.
B. Caesar accepted the crown offered by the Senate.
C. Caesar wept when the poor cried.
D. Caesar filled the public treasury with ransom money.

Choose the correct option from the following:

i) A, B, C, and D ii) A, C, and D
iii) A and D only iv) B, C, and D

9. Identify the literary device used in the repeated line 'And Brutus is an honourable man.'

10. [A] Read the lines given below from the poem The Mirror and write an appreciation focusing on its theme and poetic techniques. (1x5=5)

Now I am a lake. A woman bends over me,
Searching my reaches for what she really is.
Then she turns to those liars, the candles or the moon.
I see her back, and reflect it faithfully.
She rewards me with tears and an agitation of hands.
I am important to her. She comes and goes.
Each morning it is her face that replaces the darkness.
In me she has drowned a young girl, and in me an old woman
Rises toward her day after day, like a terrible fish.

Questions 11 - 14: Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

Robotics is the branch of science and technology that deals with the design, construction, and operation of robots. A robot is a machine that can perform tasks automatically, relying on computer programming. Robots are designed to make human life easier, safer, and more efficient.

The field of robotics combines knowledge from mechanics, electronics, computer science, and artificial intelligence. Some robots are controlled by humans and they act according to instructions; while others are autonomous, meaning they can make decisions on their own, guided by sensors and software.

In factories, industrial robots assemble cars and electronic devices with great precision. In medicine, robotic arms assist doctors in performing delicate surgeries. Robots are also used in space exploration, underwater research, disaster management, and various other fields.

In recent years, humanoid robots, machines that resemble human and behave like us, have gained popularity. Educational robots teach programming and problem-solving skills to students. Robotics is an area of rapid growth and development, shaping the future of work and learning. As technology advances, robots will become even more intelligent and efficient.

11. What are the main areas of knowledge combined in robotics?

12. How do humanoid robots differ from human-controlled robots?

13. Which of the following statements best describes a robot?

a) A non-living creature that imitates humans
b) A machine that can perform tasks automatically
c) A computer program that plays games
d) A tool used in factories

14. Which of the following statements about robots are NOT true?

A. All robots are humanoid robots.
B. Robots are used in industries, medicine, and space exploration.

C. Humanoid robots are designed to look and act like humans.
D. Educational robots do not help students learn programming skills.

Choose the correct option from the following:

i. Only A ii. Both A and D
iii. Both A and C iv. A, C and D

Questions 1 – 5: Read the excerpt taken from Beloved Boles and answer the questions that follow. (5x1=5)

And thenceforth, regularly, twice a week, I wrote a letter to Boles, and an answer from Boles to Teresa. She, of course, listened to them, and wept like anything. She roared, I should say, with her bass voice. And in return for my service, she began to mend the holes I had in my socks, shirts, and other articles of clothing. Three months later she was thrown into prison for some reason or the other and by now she must surely be dead.

My acquaintance shook the ash from his cigarette, looked pensively up at the sky, and thus concluded: Well, well, the more a human creature has tasted of bitter things, the more it hungers after the sweet things of life. And we, wrapped in the rags of our virtues, regard others through the mist of our self- sufficiency. Convinced of our righteousness, we do not understand this.

And the whole thing turns out pretty stupidly–and very cruelly. But enough of this. It is all as old as the hills. So old that it is a shame to speak of it. Very old indeed–yes, that's what it is!

1. Why did Teresa weep while listening to the letters?

A) They reminded her of her hardships
B) They were badly written
C) They brought her emotional comfort and memories
D) They contained bad news

2. How did Teresa repay the narrator for writing the letters?

A) By giving him money
B) By cooking meals for him
C) By mending his clothes
D) By protecting him from others

3. Which statements reflect the acquaintance's reflection on human nature?

A) People who suffer value sweetness more deeply
B) Humans judge others through self-righteousness
C) Everyone is naturally kind and understanding
D) People often fail to understand others' pain

Choose the right option

i) A, B and D
ii) A and C
iii) B, C and D
iv) All the above

4. What message does the acquaintance convey through his concluding remarks?

5. Find a word from the passage that means thoughtfully or deeply.

Questions 6 – 9: Read the lines from Wild Swans at Coole and answer the questions that follow.

(4x1=4)

Unwearied still, lover by lover,
They paddle in the cold
Companionable streams or climb the air;
Their hearts have not grown old;
Passion or conquest, wander where they will,
Attend upon them still.

But now they drift on the still water,
Mysterious, beautiful;
Among what rushes will they build,
By what lake's edge or pool
Delight men's eyes when I awake some day
To find they have flown away?

6. How do the swans paddle and soar?
7. Why does the sight of the swans fail to delight the poet?
8. Which poetic device is used in the line 'Passion or conquest, wander where they will, Attend upon them still'.

i. Simile ii. Metaphor

Questions 11 - 14: Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow. (4x1=4)

In recent years, community libraries have begun to reappear in towns and villages, taking on new forms and purposes. Unlike traditional libraries that focused mainly on silent reading, modern community libraries function as shared learning spaces. They offer books, newspapers, digital resources, and even workshops for people of all ages. These libraries play a crucial role in promoting reading habits, especially among children who may not have access to books at home. Community libraries also help bridge the digital divide. Many of them provide free internet access and basic computer training, enabling people to apply for jobs, access government services, and learn new skills. For elderly people, these spaces offer a sense of belonging, while young learners benefit from group activities such as storytelling sessions and reading clubs.

Beyond education, community libraries strengthen social bonds. They encourage interaction among people from different backgrounds and promote values such as cooperation and mutual respect. In a world increasingly dominated by individual screen time, these libraries remind us of the importance of shared spaces for collective growth. By nurturing curiosity and lifelong learning, community libraries quietly contribute to the intellectual and social development of society.

11. Which of the following best describes the role of modern community libraries?
    A. Places meant only for storing old books
    B. Silent spaces restricted to individual reading
    C. Shared learning spaces that support education and social interaction
    D. Centres used only by students preparing for examinations
12. Which of the following benefits of community libraries are mentioned in the passage?
    A. Providing free internet access
    B. Offering workshops and group activities
    C. Supplying financial aid to villagers
    D. Helping people access government services

Choose the correct option from the following:

i) B and C only ii) A and C only
iii) A, B, and D iv) A, B, C, and D

13. How do community libraries help bridge the digital divide?
14. According to the passage, how do community libraries strengthen social bonds?
