War- - Luigi Pirandello

Comprehension questions

Set A

Read the excerpt from War and answer the questions that follow.

The passengers who had left Rome by the night express had to stop until dawn at the small station of Fabriano. They then needed to continue their journey by the old-fashioned local train to Sulmona.

At dawn, in a stuffy and smoky second class carriage in which a few people hadalready spent the night, a stout woman in deep mourning was hoisted in. Behind her,puffing and moaning, followed her husband—a tiny man, thin and weak, his face deathwhite. His eyes were small and bright and he looked shy and uneasy.

Having at last taken a seat, he politely thanked the passengers who had helped his wife by making room for her. Then he turned round to the woman and politely inquired:

"Are you all right, dear?"

The wife, instead of answering, pulled up the collar of her coat to hide her face.

"Nasty world," muttered the husband with a sad smile.

QUESTIONS

1. Why were the passengers forced to stop at the small station of Fabriano?
2. What details in the passage describe the physical appearance of the husband?
3. How does the husband behave towards the other passengers in the carriage?
   A) He rudely ignores them
   B) He politely thanks them
   C) He argues with them
   D) He remains silent
4. What does the wife's action of pulling up her coat collar suggest?
   A) She is feeling cold
   B) She wants to hide her grief
   C) She is angry with her husband
   D) She is afraid of the passengers
5. What does the description of the carriage as 'stuffy and smoky' indicate?
   A) Comfort and luxury
   B) Discomfort and suffocation
   C) Cleanliness and order
   D) Silence and peace

6..What does the line 'Nasty world,' muttered the husband with a sad smile reveal about his attitude towards life and society?

7. What does the husband's appearance reveal to the passengers in the carriage?
A) He is thin, weak, and looks unwell.
B) His face appears pale and death-white.
C) He looks confident and cheerful.
D) He seems shy and uneasy.

Choose the correct option:
i. A, B and D
ii. Only C
iii. B and C
iv. All

DE NOLAM

SET B

Read the excerpt from War and answer the questions that follow.

She lifted her head and bent over from her corner. She was trying to listen with great attention to the details which the stout man was giving to his companions. He was telling them the way his son had fallen as a hero, for his Country, happy and without regrets. It seemed to her that she had stumbled into a world so far unknown to her. And she was so pleased to hear everyone joining in congratulating that brave father, so stoically speaking of his child's death.

Then suddenly, as if waking up from a dream, she turned to the old man, asking him:

"Then…is your son really dead?"

Everyone stared at her. The old man, too, turned to look at her. He fixed his great, bulging, horribly watery eyes, deep in her face. For some time he tried to answer, but words failed him. He looked and looked at her. It was as if only then, at that silly, incongruous question— he had suddenly realised at last that his son was really dead— gone for ever—for ever. His face contracted and became horribly distorted. Then he snatched in haste a handkerchief from his pocket and, to the amazement of everyone, broke into harrowing, heart-breaking, uncontrollable sobs.

QUESTIONS

1. Why was the woman listening so attentively to the stout man's conversation?
2. What does the woman mean by the question, "Then… is your son really dead?"
   A) She is mocking the old man
   B) She is confused by his heroic description
   C) She doubts the truth of his story
   D) She wants to insult him
3. What effect does the woman's question have on the old man?
   A) It angers him
   B) It makes him realise the reality of his son's death
   C) It makes him proud
   D) It amuses him
4. Which emotion is most powerfully conveyed through the old man's reaction?
   A) Joy
   B) Shock and grief
   C) Indifference
   D) Fear
5. Which details show the old man's sudden emotional collapse?
   A) His face becomes distorted
   B) He stares silently for a long time
   C) He bursts into uncontrollable sobs
   D) He congratulates himself

DE KOLAM

Choose the correct option:
i. A, B and C
ii. Only D
iii. B and D
iv. All

ANSWERS

SET A

1. Because the night express could not continue its journey, the passengers had to wait until dawn at Fabriano before taking a local train.
2. He is tiny, thin and weak, with a death-white face, small bright eyes, and a shy, uneasy look.
3. B) He politely thanks them.
4. B) She wants to hide her grief.
5. B) Discomfort and suffocation.
6. It shows his sadness, bitterness, and disappointment with the harsh and uncaring nature of the world.
7. i. A, B and D

SET B

1. Because she was deeply interested and trying to understand the way the stout man spoke proudly and calmly about his son's death.
2. B) She is confused by his heroic description
3. B) It makes him realise the reality of his son's death
4. B) Shock and grief
5. i. A, B and C

DISCOURSES

(7 MARKS QUESTIONS)

1.Luigi Pirandello, in the short story War, presents the deep emotional suffering of parents who lose their sons in the war. Through a simple train journey, the writer exposes the harsh reality and utter futility of war and questions blind patriotism. Based on your reading of the story, write a review highlighting its theme and message.

(Hints: travel by local train to Sulmona- stout woman -her husband- silent grief and suffering- sharing personal experiences-parents who lost their sons at the war front- different opinions about war-view that children belong to the nation- passengers shocked by his views-woman's sudden emotional question-man bursts out into tears)

Luigi Pirandello's short story "War" is a powerful and moving story that shows the deep emotional pain of parents who lose their sons in war. The story takes place during a local train journey to Sulmona, where a group of passengers share their personal experiences related to the war.*

DE KOLAM

Among the passengers is a stout woman who is travelling with her husband. She is worried and anxious because her son has been sent to the war front. Other passengers also speak about their sons who are fighting in the war, and some have already lost their children. Though they talk calmly, their silent grief and suffering can be clearly felt.

One man shocks everyone by saying that children belong to the nation*, and parents should be proud if their sons die for the country. The passengers are disturbed by his words, as they sound heartless and insensitive. At this moment, the stout woman suddenly asks him an emotional question about whether he would be happy if his own son died in war. This question breaks him emotionally, and he* bursts into tears*, revealing his hidden pain.*

Through this simple train journey, Pirandello exposes the harsh reality and futility of war*. The story strongly questions* blind patriotism and shows that no idea of nation or glory can replace the loss of a child. The writer conveys that war only brings sorrow and suffering to innocent parents, making "War" a deeply touching and meaningful story.

2.The short story War clearly brings out the devastating impact of war on innocent people. It highlights how war causes immense suffering and leaves deep scars on humanity. Suppose you are given an opportunity to address your school assembly on the topic "War – A Curse to Humanity." Prepare the script of your speech.

DDE KOLAM

(Hints: war as a curse to mankind-pain and sufferings of parents and civilians, long-lasting effects of war-need for harmony and understanding- role of youth in promoting peace-concluding message on global peace)

Respected Principal, teachers and my dear friends,

A very good morning to all. Today I stand before you to speak on the topic "War – A Curse to Humanity." War is one of the greatest evils faced by mankind. Though it is often fought in the name of patriotism and honour, war brings only destruction, sorrow and loss to humanity.

The short story "War" by Luigi Pirandello clearly shows the devastating impact of war on innocent people. The story is set during a train journey where parents talk about their sons who have gone to the war front. Through their conversations, the writer reveals the deep pain and silent suffering of parents. The stout woman's fear for her son and the man's emotional breakdown in the train show that no parent can remain strong when faced with the loss of a child. The story proves that war leaves emotional wounds that never heal.

War not only affects soldiers but also innocent civilians. Parents lose their children, wives lose their husbands and children lose their homes. Cities are destroyed and people are forced to live in fear and poverty. Even after the war ends, its effects remain for a long time in the form of mental trauma, hatred and broken families. Thus, war creates lasting damage to humanity.

Instead of choosing violence, the world must promote peace, harmony and understanding. Differences between nations should be solved through discussion and cooperation. As young citizens, we have a great responsibility. We should learn the values of love, tolerance and unity and spread the message of peace wherever possible.

In conclusion, war can never bring true victory. Only peace can ensure a safe and happy future for mankind. Let us all work together to create a peaceful world free from war and suffering. Thank you.

3.The short story War brings out the intense emotional trauma experienced by parents who lose their loved ones in war. The story highlights that the bond of family and parental love is universal and cannot be suppressed by ideas of patriotism or sacrifice. Based on your reading of the story, write an article on the emotional impact of war on individuals and families.

(Hints: emotional pain caused by war-loss of loved ones- grief of parents and families-inability to hide deep sorrow- parental love as a universal feeling-suffering of mothers and fathers)

The Emotional Impact of War on Individuals and Families

War leaves behind not only physical destruction but also deep emotional wounds that affect individuals and families for a lifetime. The short story "War" by Luigi Pirandello clearly shows how war causes intense mental pain, especially to parents who lose their loved ones.

One of the most painful effects of war is the loss of loved ones. Parents send their sons to the war front with fear and anxiety, knowing that they may never return. In the story, the silent grief of parents travelling in the train reveals how deeply war affects the human heart. Though they try to appear calm, their pain is hidden behind forced smiles and quiet words.

The grief of parents and families cannot be easily controlled or hidden. The emotional breakdown of the man in the story proves that parental sorrow cannot be suppressed by patriotic ideas. The stout woman's fear for her son shows that a mother's love is stronger than any national pride. War forces parents to accept unbearable loss, leaving permanent scars on their minds.

Parental love is a universal feeling shared by all human beings. No parent can remain unaffected by the death of a child, regardless of nationality or beliefs. Fathers and mothers suffer silently, carrying lifelong sorrow. Thus, "War" reminds us that war destroys families and humanity itself, making peace the only true solution.

4.The story War leaves the reader deeply disturbed by the emotional turmoil experienced by its characters. It reflects not only individual suffering but also the insensitive and passive attitude of society towards the horrors of war. Based on your understanding of the story, write a narrative expressing your views on war and its impact on individuals and society.

(Hints: travel by local train to Sulmona- stout woman -her husband indifference shown by the characters – self-centred and passive attitude of society – relevance to present-day conditions – personal views on war and its impact)

(6 marks)

Luigi Pirandello, the famous Italian writer, presents the cruel reality of war in his short story "War." After reading the story, I was deeply disturbed by the emotional pain and silent suffering shown through the characters. Pirandello uses a simple setting—a local train journey to Sulmona—to reveal the deep scars that war leaves on individuals and society.

The story introduces a stout woman travelling with her husband, both burdened by fear for their son who has been sent to the war front. As a reader, I felt the woman's anxiety and helplessness, while her husband's forced calm showed how people try to hide their pain. The other passengers discuss war casually, revealing the indifference and self-centred attitude of society. Some even speak as if war is necessary, showing how easily people accept violence without thinking about its human cost.

The emotional turning point of the story exposes the truth that parental love is universal. When the woman questions the idea that children belong to the nation, the emotional breakdown of a character shows that no belief or patriotism can suppress a parent's grief. This scene made me realise how deeply war wounds the human heart.

The story is highly relevant to present-day conditions, where wars continue and society often remains silent spectators. Pirandello's "War" made me understand that war does not bring honour or victory, but only pain, loss and emotional destruction. It urges readers to question war and choose humanity and peace over blind acceptance.

5. The sudden interruption by the stout man during the discussion in the train created a moment of tension among the passengers. However, his emotional breakdown at the end left everyone deeply moved. Imagine that two passengers who witnessed the incident later discuss it among themselves. Write the likely conversation between the two travellers.

Passenger 1: That sudden interruption by the stout man really shocked everyone in the compartment, didn't it?

Passenger 2: Yes, his words about children belonging to the nation sounded very harsh and insensitive.

Passenger 1: I felt disturbed, especially when the stout woman was already so anxious about her son.

Passenger 2: True. Her emotional question exposed the pain hidden behind his strong words.

Passenger 1: When he finally broke down and cried, I realised how deeply war had wounded him too.

Passenger 2: That moment proved that no parent can escape grief, and war only brings suffering, not pride.

6. The story War highlights the depth and intensity of parental love, showing that it cannot be divided or replaced by ideas of patriotism or sacrifice. Using ideas from the story along with your own views, write a paragraph on parental love.

Parental Love – A Universal and Unbreakable Bond

Parental love is one of the deepest and most powerful emotions experienced by human beings, and Luigi Pirandello's short story War beautifully highlights its intensity. In the story, parents travelling in a train speak about their sons who have been sent to the war front. Though some of them try to appear proud and patriotic, their words cannot hide their inner pain and fear. The stout woman, who worries about her only son, clearly represents a mother's unconditional love. Her anxiety and emotional outburst show that no idea of patriotism or sacrifice can reduce a parent's suffering. When she questions the belief that children belong to the nation, the emotional breakdown of another parent proves that parental love is universal and unavoidable. A parent cannot divide love between family and country, because the bond with a child is personal and lifelong. Even in the present world, parents continue to experience the same fear and helplessness when their children are in danger. Through War, Pirandello reminds us that parental love crosses all boundaries and remains stronger than war, ideology or national pride.

DE KOLAM

7.Luigi Pirandello's short story War presents the character of the stout old man as one who tries to control his grief with great patience and outward strength. Though he initially suppresses his emotions and speaks confidently about war and sacrifice, he ultimately breaks down, revealing his deep inner pain. Based on your reading of the story, write a character sketch of the stout old man.

Character Sketch of the Stout Old Man

Luigi Pirandello's short story War presents the stout old man as a character who tries hard to control his grief with patience, reason and outward strength. At first, he appears calm, confident and firm in his views about war and sacrifice. During the discussion in the train, he strongly states that children belong to the nation and that parents should feel proud if their sons die for their country. His words give the impression that he has accepted his son's death bravely and without complaint.

However, as the story progresses, the reader understands that this confidence is only a mask. The stout old man is actually a deeply wounded father who has lost his only son at the war front. His patriotic arguments are not heartless beliefs but a way to suppress his unbearable pain and to convince himself that his son's death had meaning. He shows great self-control and patience, trying to appear strong before others, though his inner world is filled with sorrow.

The emotional turning point occurs when the stout woman questions his belief about sacrifice and asks whether he would truly feel proud if his own son were dead. This simple yet powerful question shatters his emotional barrier, and he breaks down completely, bursting into tears. This moment reveals his true self—a grieving parent whose love cannot be controlled by ideas of patriotism. Through the character of the stout old man, Pirandello highlights the universal nature of parental love and exposes the deep emotional scars left by war on innocent parents.

8.On hearing that his son has been chosen to be sent to the war front, the father in the story is overwhelmed with mixed emotions. Unable to express his feelings openly, he pours out his thoughts and fears in his diary. Imagine yourself as the father and write the diary entry reflecting his emotions.

Diary Entry
15 September 1915, Wednesday.

Today has been one of the most painful days of my life. I heard the news that my son has been chosen to be sent to the war front. My heart is heavy, and my hands tremble as I write these lines. I try to remain calm before others, but inside me there is a storm of fear, sorrow and helplessness.

Everyone speaks of war as duty and sacrifice, but how can a father think of such things when his only son's life is in danger? I want to feel proud, yet my heart refuses to accept it. The thought of losing him haunts me. I imagine his smile, his voice, and I wonder whether I will ever see him again.

I try to convince myself that he belongs to the nation, that his sacrifice will bring honour. Still, my heart cries out as a father. No words can reduce this pain. I realise that no idea of patriotism can replace a child's life.

Tonight, sleep escapes me. I pray silently for his safety and wish that this cruel war would end soon. All I want is my son back in my arms. Is that too much to ask?

9.Imagine you are asked to create a promotional tag line for a campaign against war, inspired by the themes of the lesson "War". What tag line would you propose?

- Choose Peace, Protect Families."
- "War Steals Sons, Leaves Hearts Broken."
- "Love Your Children, Say No to War."
- "Patriotism Shouldn't Cost a Child's Life."

10. As the publicity convenor of your school's Literature Forum, you are asked to design a promotional tag line that reflects the deep sense of loss and grief caused by war. What tag line would you create

- "Every War Steals a Family's Joy."
- "Behind Every Soldier, a Mother's Silent Sorrow."
- "War Leaves Hearts Broken, Not Glory."
- "Say No to War – Protect Innocent Lives."
- "The True Cost of War is a Parent's Grief."

11. Read the passage given below and frame frame three WH + one Yes/No questions based on it.

Suddenly the drum beat in the courtyard outside the tavern. Everybody rose, except a few, and ran to the door or to the windows, their mouths still full. After the public crier had ceased his drumbeating, he called out in a jerky voice: "This is hereby made known to the inhabitants of Goderville, and to all persons present at the market: There was lost this morning on the road, between nine and ten o'clock, a black leather pocketbook containing five hundred francs and some business papers. The finder is requested to return the same with all haste to the Mayor's office. There will be twenty francs reward."

1. What caused everybody in the tavern to rush to the door and windows?
2. Who made the announcement to the people at the market?
3. What items were contained in the lost black leather pocketbook?
4. Was a reward offered to the person who returned the lost pocketbook?

Language Elements

DE KOLAM

1.. Report the following dialogue.

1. Passenger : I have two sons and three nephews at the front.

Husband : Maybe. But in our case, it is our only son.

2. Stout man : Do we give life to our children for our own benefit?

Passenger : No. Our children do not belong to us, rather they belong to the country.

3.Stout traveller: Do we give life to our children for our own benefit?

Another traveller: You're right. Our children do not belong to us, they belong to the country

4. Husband : " Are you all right dear?"

Wife : " I feel so tired".

5.Soldier: "Where are you both going on this train?"

Man: "We are going to our village to escape the war."

6.Woman : "Why are there so many soldiers at the station?"

Man : "They are being sent to the front to fight."

7.Soldier : "Do you have a son fighting in the war?"

Man : "Yes, my only son has gone to defend the country."

8.Passenger : "How old is your son?"

Man : "He is twenty years old — still so young and full of life."

9.Passenger : "When did you receive the news of your son's death?"

Man : "A few days ago. The letter came from the War Office."

10.Soldier : "Did you ever try to stop your son from going to war?"

Man : "No, he wanted to go, and I couldn't deny him that right."

11.Woman : "Do you think the war will end soon?"

DE KOLAM

Man : “No one knows. But peace seems far away.”

12.Passenger : “Why do parents have to suffer for the wars others start?”

Man : “That’s the tragedy — ordinary people pay the highest price.”

2,Edit the passage. Errors are given in bold.

1. The woman was twisting and wregling (a), at times growling like an (b) wild animal. She feel (c) certain that all those explanations would not have arouse (deven a shadow of sympathy from those people. They were all, most like (e) in the same plight as himself (f).
2. He shaked (a)his light fawn coat as if to show it of (b). His lips was (c) trembling. He ended with a shrill laugh what (d) might well have been a sob.

3. Having at last took (a) a seat, he politely thanked the passengers that (b) had helped his wife on (c) making room for her. Then he turn (d) round to the woman and politely inquired.

3. Complete the paragraph using appropriate phrasal verbs given in brackets.

1.The stout old man --------(a) in the train and ---------(b) his feelings about the war to the passengers. The woman ---------(c) all her fears but could not ---------(d) how deeply worried she was for her son.
(put up / get into / put in / made room / put across)

2. The woman ---------(a) her son’s letters carefully and ---------(b) every word in her heart. The old man ---------(c) all attempts to stay calm and eventually ---------(d) his grief in front of everyone.
(keep up / go through / give in / pour out / break down)

3. The mother ---------(a) her son’s letter carefully and tried to ---------(b) the hope that he would return safely. She could not stop herself from ---------(c) her feelings in front of her husband.
(hold on / go through / give in / cheer up / open up)

4. Complete the conversation between the woman and the stout man by filling in the blanks:

1. The woman : I’m sorry. I didn’t mean to upset you.
The stout man : You shouldn’t apologize. You were only speaking honestly, -------(a)-------? I regret my harsh words.

DE KOLAM

The woman : I can understand your pain. ----------(b)----------?
The stout man : Yes, he was my only son.
The woman : ----------(c)----------?
The stout man : It had been six months since he joined the war.
The woman : You are a brave man. If it had been me in your place, ----------(d)----------
The stout man : It is not bravery, it is adaptation. Would you mind if ----------(e)----------?
The woman : Not at all. Please have some rest.

2. Complete the conversation

The woman: I can see how much you are suffering.
The stout man: It is true, ---------- (a) ----------? I feel helpless sometimes.
The woman: ---------- (b) ----------?
The stout man: Yes, it is unbearable.
The woman: ---------- (c) ----------?
The stout man: I would rather ---------- (d) ----------?

The woman: If it had been me in your place, ---------- (e) ----------?
The stout man: I suppose I should try to rest. Would you mind ---------- (f) ----------?
The woman: Not at all. You need to take care of yourself.

3. Complete the conversation

The woman: I can see how worried you are about your son. You had better -------(a)----------.
The stout man: You are kind. I try to stay calm, but it is very difficult.
The woman: ----------(b)----------?
The stout man: Yes, I think about him every day.
The woman: Loving parents can never stop thinking about their children, -------(c)----------?
The stout man: I would rather keep his letters close to me than talk about my fears aloud.
The woman: Keeping his letters close to you must be comforting. If I were in your place, ------(d)----?
The stout man: I must stay patient, but would you mind ----------(e)----------?
The woman: Not at all. Please take some rest.

5. Complete the following passage choosing the right words from the bracket

1. The passengers who had left Rome ——(a)—— the night express had to stop ——(b)—— dawn at the small station ——(c)—— Fabriano. They then had to continue their journey by the old-fashioned local train ——(d)—— Sulmona. ……(e)…… dawn, in a stuffy and smoky second class carriage in which a few people had already spent the night, a stout woman ——(f)—— deep mourning was hoisted in. (from, by, until, of, in, to, at)

DEKOLAM

2. The war was taking away ——(a)—— her their only son, a boy ——(b)—— twenty. Both of them had devoted their entire life ——(c)—— him. They had even broken ——(d)—— their home ——(e)—— Sulmona to follow him to Rome, —— (f) —— he had to go as a student. (up, at, from, where, of, to)

3, The stout man waited (a) _____ the railway station, looking anxious and tired. He stood silently (b) _____ the platform, holding a photograph close to his chest. People gathered (c) _____ him when they noticed his strange behaviour. He searched (d) _____ his son's face among the returning soldiers. Tears rolled (e) _____ his cheeks when he realized the truth. The grieving mother sat the bench, lost (f)_____ her sorrow.

(in, down, at, around, on, for)

4.The grieving mother waited (a) ____ the small railway station, holding a letter close to her heart. She had travelled (b) ____ the village to meet another parent who shared her pain. The two strangers spoke quietly (c) ____ the tragedy that had changed their lives forever. Tears rolled down her face (d) ____ she heard about the death of the young soldier. The stout man stood silently (e) ____ her, unable to express his sorrow in words. In that moment, both parents felt united (f) ____ their loss and suffering.

(in, at, beside, from, about, as)

6. Fill in the blanks using appropriate words chosen from those given in the bracket.

1.Since the outbreak of the war, the passengers at the small railway station _____(a)_____ anxiously about their children who had been sent to the war front. Day after day, they waited for news, hoping for letters that never came. In that moment of painful uncertainty, ____(b)_____ the grieving mother _____(c)_____ the stout man could find the strength to speak, as the fear of loss hung heavily in the air.

(has been talking / have been talking /either ... or / neither ... nor)

2. As the train slowly approached the platform, the grieving mother _____(a)_____ the letter close to her heart, fearing the news it might bring. Around her, the waiting parents looked on helplessly, knowing that _____(b)_____ hope _____(c)_____ fear filled their minds as the war continued.

(was holding / is holding/either ... or / neither ... nor)

DE KOLAY

Answers

1.. Report the following dialogue.

1. The passenger told the husband that he had two sons and three nephews at the front.
The husband replied that it might be so but said that in their case it was their only son.

2. The stout man asked the passenger whether they gave life to their children for their own benefit.
The passenger replied negatively and added that their children did not belong to them rather they belonged to the country.

3.The stout traveller asked whether they gave life to their children for their own benefit.
Then another traveller agreed with him and said that their children did not belong to them, but to the country.
4. The husband asked his wife if she was all right.
The wife replied that she felt very tired.

5,The soldier asked where they were both going on the train.
The man replied that they were going to their village to escape the war.

6. The woman asked why there were so many soldiers at the station.
The man replied that they were being sent to the front to fight.

7. The soldier asked whether he had a son fighting in the war.
The man replied that his only son had gone to defend the country.

8. The passenger asked how old his son was.
The man replied that he was twenty years old, still so young and full of life.

9. The passenger asked when he had received the news of his son's death.
The man replied that he had received the letter from the War Office a few days ago.

10. The soldier asked whether he had ever tried to stop his son from going to war.
The man replied that he had not, as his son wanted to go and he could not deny him that right.

11. The woman asked whether he thought the war would end soon.
The man replied that no one knew, but peace seemed far away.

12. The passenger asked why parents had to suffer for the wars others start. The man replied that that was the tragedy, as ordinary people paid the highest price.

2,Edit the passage

1. (a) wriggling (b)a (c) felt (d) aroused (e) likely (f) "themselves

2. (a) shook (b) off (c) were (d) which

DE KOLAM

3. (a) taken (b) who (c) on (d) turned

3.PHRASAL VERBS

1. (a) got into (b) put across (c) put up (d) put in

2. (a) went through (b) kept up (c) gave in (d) poured out

3. (a) went through (b) hold on (c) opening up

4. COMPLETE THE CONVERSATON

1.(a) weren't you
(b) Was he your only son
(c) How long had he been in the war
(d) I would have broken down
(e) I took some rest

2. (a) isn't it
(b) Is it unbearable
(c) What would you like to do
(d) be silent
(e) I would have broken down
(f) if I took some rest

3. (a) take some rest
(b) Do you think about him every day
(c) can they
(d) I would have broken down
(e) if I took some rest

5.COMPLETE THE PASSAGE

1,(a) by
(b) at
(c) of
(d) to
(e) At
(f) in

2. (a) from
(b) of
(c) to
(d) up

DDE KOLLAM

(e) at
(f) where

3. (a) at
(b) on
(c) around
(d) for
(e) down
(f) in

4.. (a) at
(b) from
(c) about
(d) as
(e) beside
(f) in

6. Fill in the blanks using appropriate words chosen from those given in the bracket.

1.
(a) have been talking
(b) neither
(c) nor

2,
(a) was holding
(b) either
(c) or

KOLAM