Chapter 3

SOCIAL ANALYSIS : THROUGH SOCIOLOGICAL IMAGINATIONS

ANSWERS

1. c) Charles Wright Mills
2. Charles Wright Mills (1959)
3. c) Sociological Imagination
4. i) Commonsense knowledge
   ii) Such concepts are formed through personal experience, social interactions, and cultural knowledge .
5. A social problem is a problem or condition that affects a large number of people in society. Problems that affect only a single or a few individuals are not considered as social problems.
6. No I do not agree with this statement. Poverty is never caused by personal reasons alone. It is also caused by some social factors. The above statement is simply a generalisation based on commonsense knowledge.
7. The statement is absolutely correct. Individual learning methods and styles affect learning. There are also those who study in groups and those who study by taking regular intervals. Therefore the statement that a high score can only be achieved by studying for long time is nearly common sense knowledge derived from speculations and practices
8. It is a general statement to make that teenagers are always rebellious and irresponsible. Such general statements, beliefs or ideas are referred to stereotype. It is also a misleading statement to say that all teenagers are rebellious and irresponsible.Teenagers are indeed heterogeneous group, usually showing responsibility and mutual respect.

9. This is a statement based on day to day observations without detailed understanding of nutrition and health. These are partial understanding, not based on scientific observation or studies.

10. Limitations of common sense knowledge
    - Relies on speculations for practices
    - Not based on scientific observations or studies
    - Complex social problems cannot be understood
    - Provides only partial knowledge

11. Family, education, peer groups, religion, caste system, economic status, environment, cultural norms, values, governance system, politics, technology, media.

12.

Individual Problems	Social factors
Poverty	Economic, Environmental, Educational
Homelessness	Population growth, Environmental factors
Scarcity of drinking water	Environmental factors, Climate change, Industrialisation

13.
    - Financial
    - Environmental
    - Administrative
    - Geographical disparities

14. Many people generally depend on finding the cause of personal problems :- Past experience of individuals Informations and experiences gained from interacting with others Based on the knowledge gained through the socialisation process.

15. Climate change is partly caused by human activities. Burning plastic, deforestation, and the release of various types of chlorofluorocarbons from factories are all factors that contribute to global warming. All these are caused by human intervention. The statement given is based on commonsense knowledge. Such commonsense knowledge is often partial.

16. Social relationship, social institutions and social structure

Social relationships are the relations and interactions that individuals develop from within the society. Social institutions are the framework of rules established by society to stabilise and regulate social relations. The social structure explains and implements the status, roles, existence and responsibility of individuals in the society.

17. Social imagination reveals that there are many other factors resulting in road accidents. For instance, violations of traffic rules, over crowding of vehicles, limited transportation facilities, failure of legal system, unscientific way of construction of roads and the so on.

18. Nikhil's opinion is based on commonsense knowledge. I do not agree with this opinion. We can find that there are many cultural, economic and education factors behind the general status gap in labour force participation among the women.

19. Self-reflexivity is the skill to critically evaluate one's own thoughts and actions. Apart from understanding the social factors behind individual problems, sociolagical imagination helps to realise more about oneself and exercise self-reflection.

Example : Ishaan's transition from engineering to painting.

- Family background
- Limited access to resources
- Social backwardness
- Lack of support and motivation

21. Critically evaluates problems. This allows for constructive intervention in the problem. Recognizes that such problems are similar. Discovers that the cause of such problems is social factors.

16. The Dalit Panthers movement was formed in Maharashtra in 1972. The movement was led by educated Dalit youth from urban areas. Dr. B. R. Ambedkar's ideas of social justice for backward communities, equality, and the annihilation of caste etc influenced the Dalit Panthers movement. They organised aggressive resistance against caste discrimination, large-scale public protests against unjust police brutalities, literary and cultural programmes, and various activities in collaboration with other social justice movements. The Dalit Panthers movement was able to make the lives of those who were considered untouchable and marginalised, the themes of literature, cinema, drama, etc. and to persuade the government to take strong measures against attacks on Dalits.

17. The Anti-Arrack Movement is a women's movement that emerged in the Nellore district of Andhra Pradesh in the 1990s. This movement, in which thousands of women rallied, later spread throughout the entire state. Arrack was a locally brewed and distributed alcoholic beverage. The widespread use of alcohol created social discord and damaged the mental and physical well-being of young people. This also led to the ruin of the economic foundation of the village, domestic violence, atrocities against women, and poverty. The Anti-Arrack Movement later evolved into a protest addressing various issues faced by women, including sexual harassment, violence in public spaces, and gender discrimination. This helped to create social awareness against drugs and the problems faced by women in society.

18. The Nirbhaya Movement is a mass movement that was formed in Delhi against violence against women. In 2012, a girl was sexually assaulted and murdered in Delhi. This incident led to massive protests across the country. This protest led to the formation of the Nirbhaya Movement. 22. Communalism is the idea of dividing people on the basis of religion and creating social conflict. During the colonial period, the British strategy of 'divide and rule' led to the division of the Indian populace on the basis of religion and fostered communalism. Similarly, the riots that followed the partition of India also contributed to dividing the population based on religion and nurturing communal thoughts. Communal divide undermines our constitutional values like secularism and social justice, posing a threat to the nation's unity and integrity. The formation of public opinion based on religion and communal thinking, and the way by which political parties use it to influence voters in elections, pose a significant challenge to democracy. Communalism can only be countered through creating public awareness, sensitisation, and proper democratic literacy

23. Although the Constitution has divided powers between the Centre and the States, more power is vested in the Centre. It has also ensured vantage of the Central Government in some matters. On the other hand, the Constitution also gives the States the right to freely exercise the powers given to them. However, often the successive Central Governments directly and through Governors interfere in this right of the States. We can also see politics interfering in the centrally-funded schemes and distribution of resources. Such moves are the main cause for worsening the Centre-State relations. The Judiciary has the authority to resolve legal dispute between the Centre and the states.

24. A major challenge faced by democracy is the criminalisation of politics. Criminalisation of politics refers to the tendency of leaders or workers of political parties engaging in or encouraging criminal activities. Furthermore, the involvement of individuals engaged in criminal acts in politics also constitutes the criminalisation of politics. Intimidating people to vote in favour of a particular party or creating such an environment leads to the erosion of democratic values. When individuals with criminal backgrounds reach the leadership of political parties and become rulers, it causes citizens to lose faith in the democratic system. Defection refers to an elected representative, who contested and won the election as a candidate of one party, abandoning that party or joining another party. This situation often betrays the trust that voters have placed in their representatives during the election. This often creates crisis in governance and poses a challenge to democracy. Subsequently, the Anti-Defection Law was passed by Parliament in 1985 through the 52nd Constitutional Amendment to prevent defection.

- To submit a report to the President regarding the administrative affairs of the state.
- When bills passed by the Legislative Assembly are submitted for the Governor's assent, the Governor can take the following actions:
- Declare whether the bill has been given assent or not.
- Return the bill to the Legislative Assembly with amendments. If the bill, thus returned, is reconsidered by the assembly and passed again with or without amendments and submitted to the Governor, the Governor is bound to give as sent to it.
- Submit the bill for the consideration of the President.

27. This is a project designed to allow individuals and corporates to donate any amount they want to any political party. Electoral bonds were introduced in the 2017-2018 Union Budget. All parties that have secured not less than one percent of the total votes polled in the previous state and Lok Sabha elections and are registered with the Election Commission can raise money through these bonds. Institutions or individuals can buy bonds for an amount of their choice ranging from Rs 1,000 to Rs 1 crore through SBI. Since this amount falls under the category of donation, it will be tax deductible. Political parties must convert the bonds received from donors into cash within fifteen days. The Supreme Court on February 15, 2024, quashed the electoral bond after examining the transparency and legality of the bonds. The Supreme Court ruled that the electoral bond is against the fundamental right.
